CHURCHILL VOTED CONFIDENCE

Stimson Speech Seen as Herald of New U. S. Policy

COUNCIL PUTS CITY FIRE TAX UP TO VOTERS

Levy to Replace Antiquated Equipment To Be Voted on at November Election.

ONE OPPOSING VOTE

Kyle Protests, Claiming Rate Excessive; Miller Submits Detailed Program.

By a vote of eight to one, city council last night passed emergency legislation placing the half-mill levy, proposed for modernization of "rattle trap" fire fighting equipment, before Mansfield voters at the November election.

The levy was first intended to be placed on the August primary ballot but City Solicitor M. D. Ward, jr., told council last night that it could not be voted upon before the November election. Ohio law requires a vote on a levy at general elections, he said.

Introduced by Councilman Fred Miller with the recommendation of the finance committee, the ordinance was the outgrowth of a series of break downs of city fire apparatus in the week following the $100,000 Home Materials lumber yard fire on April 20.

Only opposition to the levy was voiced by Councilman George Kyle who claimed that the rate would be too high. Kyle said that he was in sympathy with the program to bring fire equipment up to date that he believed the amount of the levy should be cut.

Kyle is a member of the Mansfield Real Estate board which, in a letter to council, opposed the levy claiming it was excessive.

Kyle pointed out that the tax duplicate was already $54,000,000 and was increasing rapidly with the building of new homes and with new industrial buildings. The councilman did not only object when the levy came up for vote but twice later in the meeting. The Third Ward representative was the only dissenting voter on the ordinance.

Miller today claimed that the levy would not be too high and pointed out that any real estate expansion would only increase the need for better fire protection.

Basing his figures on an estimate by City Auditor Paul L. Kelley that the levy would produce $125,000 in the five years it

Sally Rand Gets The Boys to Take 'Em Off Instead

BOSTON — (NS) — Sally Rand was resting today after a hectic night during which she:

1. Caused "a student riot" in Harvard Square:

2. Was kidnaped by Massachusetts Institute of Technology students;

3. Deftly got the boys to "take them off" while she didn't.

It began when enroute to a Freshman smoker at Harvard, attended by 500 at Sanders hall, Sally was "kidnaped" as she left a Boston night club. She was driven by automobile to Burton Hall, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and became the center of an impromptu party.

After appealing to the gentlemanly instincts of the engineers" and as Harvard men put up a zealous fight to get her, Sally was taken to the Harvard smoker.

Responding to a surging chant of "take off your clothes," the bubble dancer gave a five word answer: "I will if you will."

Almost as one man the 500 students began to tear off coats, shirts and neck-ties. It was pronounced the greatest mass undress in Harvard history.

TRAFFIC LEAGUE PROTESTS

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Letters protesting the proposed St. Lawrence waterway project have been sent to President Roosevelt and Ohio and Kentucky congressmen by the Traffic League of Cincinnati, composed of 150 truck, rail and barge shippers.

TWO INJURED

MARYSVILLE — (NS) — Two persons were injured when the auto in which they were riding struck a tree in Route 33 south of nearby New California. Miss Imogene Barton, 28, Columbus, and Max Miller, 37, Marysville, were those injured.

Where Fire Tax Money Would Go

Estimated by council's finance committee to produce $125,000 in the five years it would run, the proposed half mill levy which will come up for a popular vote in November is expected to pay for fire department modernization as listed below:

1. Purchase of new equipment $60,000.
2. Improvement and extension of fire alarm system $25,000.
3. Improvements at No. 1 station $10,000.
4. Improvements at No. 4 station $4,000.
5. Construction of new fire station $25,000.

RAIN HELP TO CROPS, PERILS PHONE SYSTEM

Farmers Cheered But Telephone Service to 600 Homes Cut Off By Showers.

More than a third of an inch of rainfall brightened farmers' hopes in the Richland county area today, but it played havoc with telephone service in the northeast section of Mansfield, putting an estimated 600 phones out of order and threatening service to 1,200 other homes and industrial firms.

Starting before dawn, the rain fell steadily for several hours. Total fall in Mansfield was .37 of an inch, heaviest in recent weeks.

Telephone services in hundreds of homes and offices in the industrial section of the city north of Sixth street and East of Main street was disrupted this morning when water from a sewer seeped into a main telephone cable on North Main street, grounding the line, C. L. Lisle, maintenance superintendent of the Mansfield Telephone company said.

Lisle said the leak developed at a splice which was made recently in the line and the outage might spread to all of the 1,800 telephones served by the cable before the trouble can be eliminated.

He warned that the telephone service to the Ohio Brass and Tappan Stove company plants might be interrupted during the

PEGS PRICES

Henderson Issues Order on Machine Tools.

WASHINGTON—(NS)—An order virtually freezing the price of second hand machine tools to prices prevailing last March 1 was issued today by Leon Henderson, administrator of the office of price administration and civilian supply.

It was a supplement to a recent request asking machine tools manufacturers and jobbers keep down prices of new and used equipment.

It was understood that Henderson's order came as a result of increasing prices on new machinery which threatened a spiral of costs on used equipment.

How Close Does 'Defense Zone' Bring U. S. to Actual Warfare?

Overlapping of Sea Lines Marks Area of Danger

(Editor's Note: In view of the address of Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson last night, in which he recommended action "right now" by the United States navy to see that war supplies reach Great Britain, and thus insure the safety of the United States, the following article on the significance of the recently announced 1,000-mile defense zone in the Atlantic, now being patrolled by the navy, is especially timely.)

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
(AP Feature Service Writer)

WASHINGTON—It is possible to draw on a map part of the answer to the question, "How close is war to American shores?"

All you have to do is to take:

1. The Hitler combat zone as revised by the German government on March 26, and superimpose on that—

2. The American defense line 1,000 miles from American shores from Greenland south to Florida, as defined on April 23 by Chairman F. H. LaGuardia of the United States-Canadian permanent joint defense board; and then draw on top of that—

3. The steamer lanes between Halifax and Liverpool, over which most of our aid to Britain must travel.

When you have done all these things (See Map) you have a mid-Atlantic trouble spot, where American patrols, British convoys, and German blockaders might meet.

Washington's closest observers of the war scene suggest that when American patrols meet German sub or surface raiders close to British convoys, the stage is set for fireworks.

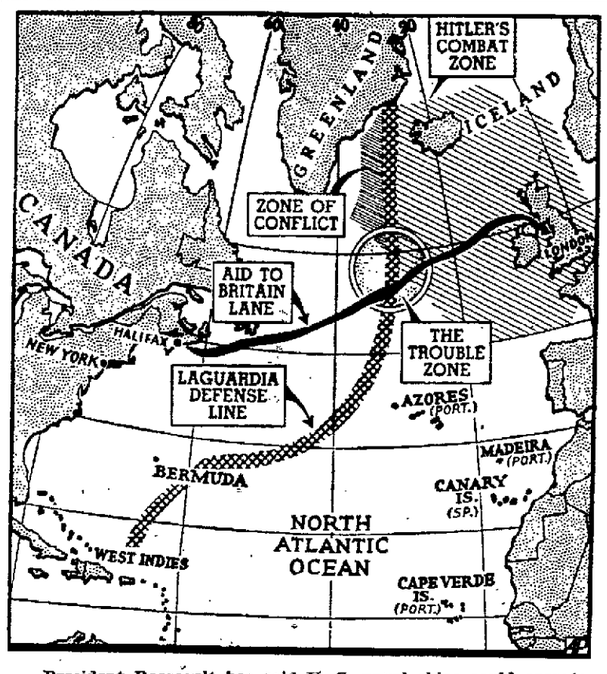

The next question is, Will they go off?

If the observers read their history right, the answer to that question has been left at this stage of the game to Adolf Hitler. Here's how:

During the first World war, President Wilson created an American precedent, backed by a majority of the American public of that day.

Before we entered that war, a series of public statements and notes exchanged between the United States, Great Britain and Germany, made it clear that the United States would ultimately fight if the European belligerents sank American vessels, or vessels

Senate Opponents Hit Talks By Cabinet as Moves To Involvement.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary Knox said today that the navy is "readier now than ever" to undertake the job of assuring delivery of war supplies to Britain — if and when it is assigned to such duty.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A blunt plea from Secretary of War Stimson for use of the U. S. navy — "right now" — in the battle of the Atlantic strengthened the belief today that some such strategy is now receiving administration consideration.

Special importance was attached to Stimson's words in many quarters because Stephen Early, presidential secretary, said it could be assumed that the war department chief discussed his address in advance with Mr. Roosevelt.

Stimson was the fifth cabinet officer to speak out strongly in recent weeks for more dynamic action to guarantee the success of the aid-to-Britain program, but he was the first to advocate a specific course—use of the navy.

In advocating this prompt naval assistance, Stimson told the nation in his radio address last night that Germany had extended her zone of unrestricted sea warfare into the western hemisphere.

He also assailed the character of German submarine warfare in the North Atlantic, calling it "illegal" and a "violation of law and humanity."

The U-boat tactics, he said, were identical with those of 1917 when

Green Declares Rival Group Caused Defense Tie-Ups.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor today blamed the rival Congress of Industrial Organizations for most of the strikes in national defense plants.

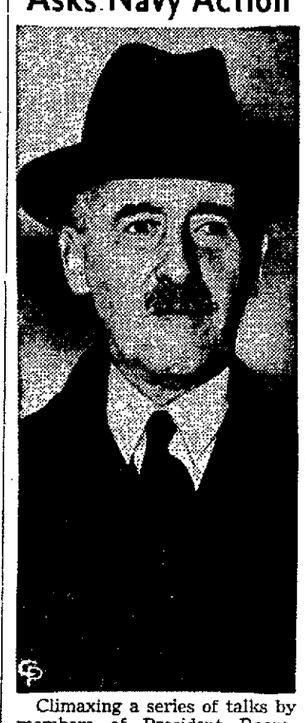

He told the house judiciary committee, which is investigating defense industry strikes, that 90 per cent of strikes affecting defense production were "brought about by disputes of the CIO." The AFL, he said, was involved in but 5 per cent of these vital work stoppages.

"The record speaks for itself," Green testified. "It represents facts furnished by the Office of Production Management and its authority cannot be challenged.

Asks Navy Action

Climaxing a series of talks by members of President Roosevelt's cabinet calling for more vigorous action in assuring delivery of war materials to Britain, Secretary of War Harry L. Stimson last night made the specific proposal that the U. S. Navy act "right now" in the battle of the Atlantic. His proposal was made in a broadcast from Washington.

STALIN TAKES PREMIERSHIP

Replaces Molotov as Premier; British See Possible Change of Policy.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW — Joseph Stalin, replacing Vyacheslav M. Molotov as premier, has taken over open leadership of the Soviet Union which he had guided from behind the scenes as secretary-general of the Communist party.

Molotov, premier or chairman of the council of people's commissars for 11 years, continues in high position as commissar of foreign affairs—the office he took over from Maxim Litvinoff two years ago, only a few months before the Soviet-German non-aggression pact was signed.

(A hint that Moltov's star might be descending was seen by some observers last February when his wife was dropped as a candidate for the Communist party's central committee.

(A British radio broadcast heard last night in New York recalled that Moltov's replacement of Litvinoff preceded a sudden swing of Soviet foreign policy toward Germany, and said now "a further change seems to be indicated."

(Other sources in London, however, commented that "there has been nothing in recent official dispatches from Russia to permit an assumption that big changes are coming.")

Molotov, now 50, was relieved

(By Associated Press)

Prime Minister Winston Churchill won a smashing vote of confidence on his conduct of the war today after predicting to the house of commons that Britain would be successful in holding the Egyptian valley of the Nile, the Suez canal and Malta.

The vote was 447 to 3.

At the same time, Capt. A. J. M. Hudson, civil lord of the admiralty, drew thunderous cheers from the house when he declared "we have every reason to be encouraged by recent results" achieved in Britain's struggle against the German U-boat campaign.

Churchill declared "we intend to defend to the death and without thought of retirement" the isle of Crete, new seat of King George II's Greek government, and the Libyan desert fortress of Tobruk.

The prime minister said Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander-in-chief of British middle east armies, has nearly 500,000 men on guard against the Axis in that theater of the conflict.

As for the battle of the Atlantic, Churchill said he expected enough new American merchant ships to see Britain through 1942.

Even as Churchill spoke, Nazi daylight raiders jabbed anew at the island kingdom.

'OPEN HOUSE'

Richland CCC Camp Open For Public Inspection Today.

Ohio CCC camps, including the Rocky Fork camp southeast of Mansfield, began "open house" tours today to show the public what the camp enrollees are doing for the state's conservation program.

"Open house" at the CCC camps is being conducted in connection with a "Know Your CCC Camps" program sponsored by the U. S. army. The tours for visitors will be continued through Saturday.

Visitors at the camps will be shown how the boys live and what they do when they are in the field. Their work in Richland county deals largely with soil conservation in guarding against erosion and retiring worn-out land from active production until it can be built up again.

WORK TOGETHER ON ECONOMICS

U. S., Canada Plan to Set Up More Defense Boards.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States and Canada will set up closely collaborating economic defense boards in the immediate future, it was learned authoritatively today to speed up mobilization of North American resources for aid-to-Britain and hemisphere defense.

In the economic, industrial and financial fields, the new boards would complement the work of the joint U. S.-Canadian defense board set up a year ago to coordinate the military and naval defense preparations of the Dominion and this country.

President Roosevelt is expected to name the American board in the near future, but no names were available today.

FAVOR WILLKIE

G. O. P. Leader Considered as Morale Agency Head.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)—Wendell L. Willkie was being discussed today as the possible head of a new government agency which some administration officials want to create to build up national morale and to overcome what they consider the public's complacency about the defense and British-aid programs.

Officials said such an agency would have the same general objectives as the World war committee on public information headed by George Creel, although it would not necessarily take the same form.

One of those said to favor such an organization is Harry L. Hopkins, director of the lend-lease program. He and other administration officials believe that the public generally must be made to feel it is participating in defense efforts.

FUND WITHIN $1,991 OF GOAL

With Hours To Go, Pledges Swell Total Subscriptions To $62,383 Today.

With only hours to go, Mansfield Community Fund workers were within $1,991 of the goal at noon today after reports on new pledges amounting to $3,046 swelled total subscriptions to $62,383 against a goal of $64,375.

Fund officials, division majors and campaign workers feverishly sought to collect scattered pledge cards before the drive officially ends at 9 p. m.

To make sure that every card has been collected, however, workers have asked for an extra day to complete their collections.

Rev. D. N. Roller, campaign chairman, announced that the clean-up report luncheon previously scheduled for Thursday has been postponed until Friday out of courtesy to the solicitors.

Confidence that the goal would be reached was expressed again today by Rev. Roller as he urged the divisional majors this week to complete their contacts as quickly as possible.

Over the top by $95 yesterday, the indistrial division, headed by A. C. Rhoads, added $1,000 to that amount today making a total of $40,620.50 against a quota of $39,525.

The organizations division led by Mrs. Tom Ford also over the top yesterday, added $25 to its total today. Subscriptions in the organizations division now total $3,998 against a quota off $3,900.

Reports made by other divisions just before the noon luncheon included: clothing, $500; construction, $248; financial, $175; food, $152; public employes, $218; organizations, $25; professions, $553; public service, $175; industry, $1,000.

Hopes Dim for July 1 Slash In Mansfield Electric Rates

The chances that July 1 would pass without Mansfield electric consumers getting a reduction in their monthly bills grew greater today.

Lack of action by council at its meeting last night on the Ohio Public Service company's offer to give reduced domestic rates in a five-year contract ordinance made it unlikely that the offer would be accepted by July 1.

It would be necessary to pass the ordinance at the regular June meeting as an emergency or at a special meeting before July in order to accept the company's offer and have lowered rates by July 1.

The company submitted its proposal to reduce the rates on March 27. The lower rate would mean savings of at least $70,000 annually for Mansfield homeowners, company officials estimated.

The proposal has been in the hands of council's utilities committee since its submission. Russell D. Porch, chairman, told council last night that the committee has been holding several meetings but had run against technical difficulties. Porch said that he and City Solicitor M. D. Ward, jr., would go to Columbus on May 20 to confer with the state public utilities commission on other rate ordinances and schedules in other cities of the state.

The company is offering the city the lowest rate in effect in any city it serves. At present, Mansfield is paying the highest rate charged by the company.

Government Agents Round Up German Seamen In New York

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — In another direct Anti-Nazi move, a force of armed government agents today swept through New York's German colony rounding up more than 125 stranded Nazi seamen for shipment to an American "concentration camp," possibly in the mid west.

Individual warrants charged each of the seamen with violating the immigration law by overstaying leave in this country without permission.

Indication that the round-up was carefully planned was seen in the fact that a large force of immigration officers, Canadian border patrolmen and coastguardsmen has been concentrating in New York since Monday.

At four a. m. today these federal agents, aided by New York City patrolmen and detectives launched the Nazi round-up in Yorkville, center of Manhattan's German colony.

Hotels, furnished rooming houses, all-night restaurants and bars were combed and any German who could not account for his residence was questioned and his name checked against the list of wanted men.

Although the raiding party was armed with heavy service revolvers, no resistance was offered and the seamen were herded, first to police precincts and then to the barge office at the tip of Manhattan Isle for transportation past the Statue of Liberty to Ellis Island.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—The Hollywood wedding is not what it used to be.

Deanna Durban and Vaughn Paul, now honeymooning, went through a "big" church wedding, right here in town and it was—as the ladies all said—a "lovely wedding" and a "sweet wedding," but it was practically a non-professional production.

ROBBIN COONS

Except for the newsreels and the still cameras afterward, it went off about the way church weddings of the well-to-do go off anywhere. There weren't any innovations, there wasn't anything to make Mrs. Post turn pale. It was formal, without being stilted.

In the old days Hollywood put on weddings that were weddings.

Enshrined in legend is the Goldwyn production that united Vilma Banky and Rod LaRocque — a marital team, by the way, that still defies another Hollywood tradition by staying happily married.

Everybody here remembers that wedding as the one to top. Everybody remembers the reception, with particular reference to the orchids and the "prop" turkeys. Recalled is the agitation that greeted the late Lilyan Tashman's mischievous insistence on a freshly carved slice of breast—though accounts differ as to whether the prop-birds were papier mache or the real thing, strategically backgrounding the sandwich trays. Moot point, too, is whether it was Sam himself, or an attendant, who hastily gathered up the orchids as feminine guests began helping themselves.

First movie couple to match this splendor in a wedding were Ben Bard and the late Ruth Roland, whose marriage at a leading hotel is still discussed with nostalgic sighs. The decorations were of apple blossoms, almond blossoms, and white carnations. The bride (always an independent soul) overlooked the tradition about costume for second marriages and wore a full bridal veil and wreath of orange blossoms. Most of the bridesmaids were veterans of at least one divorce, and a highlight of the attendant festivities was the singing of "Roses of Picardy"—by the bride.

COUNCIL GIVES EMPIRE WATER STATION RIGHTS

Approves Earlier Agreement to Permit Steel Mill to Use Longview Equipment.

Making good its "gentlemen's agreement" to license the old Longview water pumping station to the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company to meet industrial expansion, city council last night gave the company a go-ahead signal to adapt the station for its needs.

Last week, council decided to allow the company use of the station for $100 per year. The company had applied for a license to use the station and its water for industrial pumpers at its plant. It told council that it had ordered approximately $120,000 worth of new machinery in line with its expansion program.

An ordinance passed last night embodied all provisions of a "gentleman's agreement" reached last week because City Solicitor M. D. Ward, jr., was not present to draft a regular ordinance.

Under the terms of the ordinance, the steel company will assume all expense in overhauling the station and constructing a line to its plant. It will also release the city from any damage claims and will return the station to the city for use in case of emergency.

The city has not been using the Longview station for more than four years. The Woodland reservoir serves the entire city. The state health department had asked the city not to use the Longview water for drinking purposes unless it was treated.

In other actions last night council also passed an ordinance guaranteeing city employes called for military service their jobs upon retirement from service. Their seniority was also promised in the ordinance.

BLAST WRECKS VARNISH VAT

Six Injured as Explosions at Du Pont Plant Rock All Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—A series of four explosions early today destroyed the varnish distillery of the Philadelphia plant of the E. I. Dupont De Nemours company, injuring six men, three seriously,

The terrific blasts, which rocked the entire city and were felt as far away as New Jersey and Delaware, occurred when a large vat, in which resin and other chemicals were being mixed, boiled over and caught fire.

One building, 50 by 100 feet, was demolished by the force of the explosions. Three workers, John King, 54, Anthony Poncellia, 32, and Harold K. Gressange, 38, were rushed to Philadelphia general hospital in a critical condition.

King, who was standing next to the vat, had both legs broken, and his clothes burnt off. Doctors, who said they will have to amputate the legs, gave him little chance for recovery. Three other men were less seriously injured.

Thousands of persons were attracted to the scene by the heavy blasts and city and company police immediately threw up a cordon about the buildings. A fire, which followed the explosions, was quickly brought under control.

WAR RELIEF WORKERS PLAN TO LAUNCH CLOTHING DRIVE HERE

Mansfield chapter of British War Relief will conduct an intensive drive for used clothing next week in answer to an urgent appeal from national headquarters, Louis J. Ott, chairman, announced today. The drive opens Monday.

The drive will help furnish clothing for the thousands of men, women and children of England left with nothing by the war.

To facilitate handling of bundles an auxiliary headquarters will be opened Monday morning in the Warner Bros., building on North Main street. The rooms formerly occupied by the Republican committee have been donated for this purpose.

Work of collecting, sorting and packing the garments will be carried on at this location by a large group of women under the direction of Mrs. Aaron Goldsmith, who will also be in charge of collection.

A committee of four, Robert Campbell, jr., Miss Margaret McLean, Mrs. Goldsmith and Ed Wyllie, is in charge of the drive.

Donors are asked to bring their bundles to the collection center whenever possible. When they are unable to do so, the committee requests that they telephone headquarters and arrangements for delivery will be made.

Any garment which in the donor's estimation will be of use to England's war-afflicted people will be accepted by the committee. There is a particular need however for overcoats, woolen dresses, sweaters for men and women, raincoats, woolen underwear, shoes for women and children and especially ski or snow suits for children.

Laff-a-Day

"It's for you . . . a dame!"

The superior rating of a Yonkers, N. J., junior high school orchestra directed by a former Mansfield music supervisor, Miss Frances Armstrong, has prompted Benno Rabinoff, one of the great violinists of the day, to offer to play a concerto with the orchestra at a future time, according to word received by Mansfield friends today. Miss Armstrong's orchestra played in a New York state contest and was to have competed in a national program but a measles epidemic interferred. The first instrumental school music supervisor in Mansfield, Miss Armstrong frequently visits here with Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Gibson and Marie Marks Porterfield.

Clerks at Mansfield postoffice are having a hard time keeping track of where they can and where they can't send mail in various parts of the world. A large chart in the office once bore an imposing list of European countries where mail would be assured of delivery. That same list has been blue penciled until it is but a shadow of its former self. Only two countries, Switzerland and Portugal, remain on the list of continental European countries where delivery can be reasonably assured.

Despite the lack of rainfall this spring, the Mansfield area has one of the finest blankets of wildflowers in recent years. The flowers are especially numerous in South Park and in a woodlot at Trimble road and Paxford place just southwest of the city where Sweet Williams make a blue blanket over a wide area. Trilliums and violets, including purple, yellow, and white ones, are also at their best now. The jack-in-the-pulpit flowers are just ready to burst into bloom.

Detectives Lee J. Remy and Oscar Krupp were nearly picked up last week as suspicious characters. Working on detail together, the pair rode around and around the same territory for several hours. Because the detectives were not using one of the police cars several of the residents in the neighborhood became suspicious and called police headquarters. A check revealed that the "suspicious" men were Remy and Krupp.

DOCTOR HOLDS PISTOL WHILE WHIP SWINGS

Arranges Meeting at Which His Fiancee Flogs Athlete Who Attacked Her.

CAMDENTON, Mo. —(U.P.)— Dr. Robert Murrell, 35, a physician, proposed to Hilda Rhodes, 25, a pretty, blond school teacher.

She told him she would marry him, but not until he had heard a confession: Max Caldwell, 23, former high school athlete, had attacked her at a party a year ago, she told him. Dr. Murrell still wanted to marry her, but he thought she should avenge herself.

He called at Caldwell's home in Bagnell, Mo., last Thursday, and asked him if he would like to visit Miss Rhodes, and her roommate, Aldythea Keith, 26, at their cabin near Osage Beach school. Caldwell accepted, and they went to the cabin in Dr. Murrell's automobile.

He thought it was a friendly call until Dr. Murrell pulled down the shades and confronted him with a pistol.

"Pull off your shirt," he commanded, "and lie on the floor."

Dr. Murrell handed his fiancee a whip, made of leather thongs fastened to a handle.

Silently she raised it high and brought it down, whistling, across Caldwell's back. He groaned and dug his fingers into the floor. Again and again she struck him. She handed the whip to Miss Keith, who took up the flogging. They beat him for 45 minutes. Caldwell told Sheriff H. J. Williams:

"If it had lasted a minute longer, I would have jumped Murrell in spite of the gun."

Dr. Murrell helped him on with his shirt and took him home. Caldwell went to Camdenton for medical treatment, had photographs taken of his lacerated back, and reported the beating to Williams and Lieu Cunningham, Camden county prosecutor.

Cunningham charged the physician with assault "with a dangerous and deadly weapon," and he was released in $2,500 bond. The teachers were charged with felonious assault and released in $500 bond each.

W. O. Goon, Father Of 13, Found Dead Today Near Lucas

Wilbert O. Goon, 59, father of 13 children, whose body was found early today in the barn near his home southeast of Lucas, died of a heart attack while doing his farm chores, Coroner L. B. McCullough said today.

The body was found by two sons who began a search when their father failed to return to the house. Deputy Sheriff J. R. Hetler and Coroner McCullough were called to investigate about 2 a. m. today.

The coroner said Mr. Goon, a farmer, had gone to the barn about 10 p. m. on an errand and apparently had been dead about three hours when the body was found. Relatives said he had been suffering with heart disease for several months.

The body was taken to the Denbow-Bear Funeral home in Ashland where it will remain until noon Friday. Services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Friday at St. Michael's Lutheran church in Mifflin. Rev. Curtis Stacey of Mifflin and Rev. G. M. Schrack of Lucas and Perrysville will officiate.

Mr. Goon, native of Wayne county, had lived in Ashland and Richland counties. He was a member of St. John's Lutheran church at Perrysville.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Susan Goon of Mansfield; 13 children, John of Ashland, Ernest of Ontario, Wilbert, jr., of Mansfield, Fred of Ashland, Mrs. Gladys Robertson of Mansfield, Mrs. Elva Braun of Rowsburg, Clarence of Ashland, Harold, Robert, James, and Charles, all of the home, Mrs. Pearl Ernsberger of Ashland, and Mrs Ethel Bartley, R. D. Ashland; two brothers, Lloyd Goon of Savannah and Floyd Goon of Bellville, and three sisters, Mrs. Esta Hunter of Ontario, Mrs. Vinnie Henry of Perrysville, and Mrs. Zella Dunn, Canal Fulton.

MORE than 100 were in attendance Tuesday afternoon to hear Mrs. Mildred Jaster, national Democratic committeewoman of Ohio, who was the guest of honor at the meeting of the Dolly Madison club at the Mansfield-Leland hotel ballroom. She gave a most comprehensive talk on "Women In Politics Today" and "National Emergencies." Atty. J. H. Gongwer also spoke to the group on "Functions of Education In Democracy."

Arrangements for this annual spring tea were in charge of Mrs. Norman Wolfe, general chairman, Mrs. Clark Brook, program chairman, Mrs. Boyd Wierman, Mrs. John Daley, Mrs. Paul Mitchell, Mrs. Howard Sword, Mrs. Robert Morris, Mrs. Cecil Schill, Mrs. Howard Ripper, Mrs. Sherman Glessner, Mrs. George McGinley, Mrs. John McNamara, Mrs. Don Orewiler and Mrs. Clarence Fisher.

Guests were present numbering 30 from the Monticello club of Ashland and the Martha Jefferson club of Shiloh and Plymouth. Preceding the tea a business meeting was held for the Dolly Madison club members at which time Mrs. Emma Young, Mrs. Norman Wolfe, Mrs. Howard Sword and Mrs. Cliff Mitchell were presented with corsages from the president, Mrs. Clark Brook, for their perfect attendance record during the past year.

At that time it was planned to send Mrs. Brook to Cincinnati on May 23 and 24 for the meeting of the Federated Democratic Women's association.

The program yesterday was opened by a talk by Mrs. Mae Lex, who spoke briefly on "Dolly Madison." This was followed by a tap dance by Jean Schill, Marjorie Crowl and Betty Underwood, who were accompanied at the piano by Eddie Fisher. Miss Janie Bushnell played four piano solos, two her own compositions. Mrs. Doris Battershell of Shelby favored with two readings and Mrs. Robert Brook sang two solos.

Following the program tea was served with Mrs. Pauline Gorlich, president of the Monticello club, and Mrs. Lewis Gebert, president of the Martha Jefferson club, pouring. The long serving table was attractively decorated with a centerpiece of yellow roses, the club flower, and tall lighted tapers in yellow. Before the entertainment a musical prelude was played by Miss Margaret Cumberworth of Shelby. Mrs. Jaster was presented with a corsage of yellow roses from the Dolly Madison club.

The next meeting of the club will be held on June 3 at the Mansfield-Leland hotel at which time Louis Bromfield will be the guest speaker. The meeting will convene at 7:30 p. m. with the following in charge, Mrs. Marshall Moore, Mrs. Lee Beveridge, Mrs. George Cairns, Mrs. J. A. Winget, Mrs. George Davis, Miss M. Cumberworth, Mrs. Andrew Theiss, Mrs. A. J. McHugh, Mrs. K. Newcomer, Mrs. George Slicker, Mrs. Neva Hout and Mrs. E. J. Kent.

The above pictures were taken Tuesday afternoon at the Dolly Madison annual spring tea held at the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel. In the top left photo are left to right, standing, Mrs. George McGinley, Mrs John Daley, Mrs. S. H. Glessner, and seated, Mrs. Paul Mitchell. The top right photo shows Mrs. Boyd Wierman and Mrs. John McNamara, all members of the committee in charge of arrangements. The lower picture is of Mrs. Norman Wolfe, general chairman, Mildred Jaster, national Democratic committeewoman of Ohio, the guest speaker, and Mrs. Clark Brook, program chairman and president of the Dolly Madison club.

CLASS PARTY.

Thirty-two members of the Rain or Shine class of the South Main Street Evangelical church and eight guests met at the church parlors Tuesday evening for regular meeting. Mrs. William Frickman conducted the business session and Mrs. J. A. Kochheiser led the lesson discussion. During the business session a letter was read from Mrs. Anna McGuire of San Diego, Calif., a former member. During the social hour guitar duets were given by Misses Carol Bender and Dolores Littler. Mrs. Charles Dillon, assisted by Miss Mary Frances Findley and Miss Helen Hess, favored with readings. The Misses Jean and Phyllis Owens of Ashland sang a vocal duet. At a later hour a luncheon was served by Mrs B. E. Frasher and her committee. Plans were made to meet for a picnic at South park on June 3.

CLASS THIRTEEN.

Fourteen members of the Ladies Bible class No. 13 of the First Lutheran church met at the Parish House Tuesday afternoon for a regular meeting. Mrs. Birdie Finney conducted the devotional period following the routine business session. Mrs. E. W. McCready sang two hymns, "On Wings of Prayer" and "Clear the Clouds Away." Mrs Alice Brown gave a reading and Mrs. Belle Barrett told the group of her recent trip to Florida. Later luncheon was served with Mrs. Finney and Mrs. Maglott in charge. The meeting was closed with prayer. On June 3 the class will meet for a regular program at the Parish House.

ENTERTAINS CLUB.

Miss Ethel McClure, Bowman street, was hostess to members of the E-T club at her home Tuesday evening. Fourteen members responded to roll call and one guest, Mrs. Herbert Metcalf of Mt. Vernon, was present. Contests were enjoyed following the business session. Prizes were given to Misses Freda Boebel, Jeannette Remy, Helen Berlo and Mrs. Tunis Dillon. At the close of the evening a luncheon was served by Miss McClure and Miss Carolyn Comer. The next meeting will be held May 20 at the home of Mrs. Albert Krumm, Glessner avenue.

BAND CLUB.

Mrs. Dale Jessop, 179 Dawson avenue, will be hostess to members of the Senior High Band Mothers club Friday afternoon at her home.

MEET AT PAVILION.

Ten members of the Women's Auxiliary to the Mansfield Typographical Union met Tuesday evening at Prospect park pavilion for a covered-dish dinner. Mrs. Lillian Powell gave a report on the recent convention which was held in Columbus. Mrs. Gerlina Merryman, president, conducted the business meeting. The next meeting will be held June 3.

MOTHERS CLUB.

Mrs. W. W. Hammett, 198 Helen avenue, was hostess to members of the Chi Sigma Mothers club Tuesday afternoon at her home. Ten were present and enjoyed a luncheon served at small tables decorated with spring flowers. Mrs. W. L. Seemuth, a former member, was welcomed back. High score prizes in bridge were won by Mrs. O. F. Garver and meeting will be held June 3 with Mrs. Anastasia Nail, Park avenue west road.

BRIDGE PLAYED.

Hi-Ho club members met Tuesday evening at the Kramer home on Stewart avenue. Hostesses were Mrs. William Roth and Mrs. Christian Herrick. Bridge was in play at four tables and prizes were won by Mrs. William Karrer, Mrs. John Kennedy, Mrs. Blaine Swigart and Mrs. Irilla Wappner. The next meeting will be a covered dish dinner June 3 at the home of Mrs. Walter Dow, Park avenue west road.

AUXILIARY MEETING.

Members of the Charles Dick Auxiliary, No. 28, met at the Memorial hall Tuesday for an all day quilting. Ten were present and at a late hour a birthday dinner was served for Mrs. Jennie Donnan, who was celebrating her 88th birthday. Arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Mary Gale and Mrs Alice Oster. The business session was in charge of Mrs. Effie McGregor at which time it was planned to send Mrs. Gale and Mrs. Betz of Shelby to the department convention in Zanesville on June 15. The next quilting session will be held at the hall May 15 and the business meeting will take place May 20 at the hall.

MEETING MAY 14.

Members of the Golden Link club will be entertained at the Staiger tea room, Glessner avenue, on May 14, with Mrs. Katherine Giffin as hostess.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, May 8.

Although there may be some surprising or peculiar predicament to encounter on this day the general trend of events may be deemed routine. There may be a tricky or perplexing development, calling for restraint and amiability lest it recoil with disagreeable and irritating reactions on the temper as well as the nerves. It would be well to remain alert, composed and ready for almost any treacherous or intriguing circumstance. With care all should be well.

Those whose birthday it is should be prepared for a curious, trying and baffling situation to arise, taxing the spirits, the nerves and having strange psychological reactions. Keep alert to fraud, tricks or strange entanglements, exercise extreme care with writings, documents and speech and all may proceed in customary grooves, without much danger. Do not take bold chances with funds, in speculation or sudden opportunities for securing fortunes.

A child born on this day while having many qualities and talents for fair success in life may be temperamental, sarcastic or erratic, although well liked and successful in public service.

UNCRACKED PORCELAIN

Never set hot pans on porcelain surfaces. The heat may crack the surface. Wire cake racks or heavy pads make satisfactory protectors; keep them handy.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Here we are!" Noel said, interrupting my reverie, and, looking from the window, I saw that the taxi had drawn up in front of the familiar facade of the Lansfield. The doorman was at the door of the taxi almost before we had stopped, and recognized me with a pleased smile. His smiling competent service, had made him a favorite of mine during my former sojourn at the hotel, and I had tried to see that he was fitly rewarded.

"Good-evening, Mrs. Graham," he said. "I hope you're staying with us for a time."

"Only for the night, I'm afraid," I said as Noel turned from paying the taxi-driver and ushered me toward the elevator.

"She has a room reserved," he told the doorman. "I'll come down later and register for her. Please notify the desk."

"I'll attend to it," the man replied. And then we were going up in the elevator, and I was keeping back an obvious query as to why he had not registered me and taken me to my own room first.

Mary Gives a Party.

But I found it hard resolve to keep when we arrived at the door of their suite and heard the laughter and high-pitched tones denoting that a gay party was under way.

"I'm not dressed," I began, but cut the comment short as I saw that he did not even hear me, much less heed me, as he bent to put the key in the door. But when he had unlocked it, he turned to me with an unfathomable expression in his eyes.

"I want to see what you think of this," he mumbled. And then he pulled the door open with a quick motion, and fairly pushed me inside.

I hardly recognized the big living room of their suite, so transformed was it by the profusion of roses — I recognized Philip Veritzen's hand there—exquisitely arranged — that was Mary—and by the absence of the usual furniture, desks, book cabinets and tables. Chairs were tucked in corners for those who wished to sit on them, and Olga, beautiful and stately in a creation of grey crepe with pastel flowering, presided behind a small table on which was a bowl of iced punch.

Through double glass doors I caught a glimpse of a lace-covered table with a bountiful buffet supper spread out upon it, and mentally noted that Mary had ousted her bedroom furniture and transformed the room into a supper room.

The rugs had been taken up in the living room, and the floor waxed for those who wished to dance.

It was not a formal party. Olga's was the only semi-evening gown, but the other women, some of whom I recognized as members of our company, were all in "frilly" things. I felt distinctly out of it in my severe tailored suit with, I imagine, the dust of the train journey still upon me.

Noel's Distress Explained.

No member of the company was missing, and there were a number of other men and women there, some of them unknown to me. But I knew Philip Veritzen, handsome and with his usual air of distinction, standing beside his wife's chair; I knew Olina, dancing gracefully with a tall, good-looking youth whom I did not know, and I knew Nancy Carew, veteran actress of the company, creator of a character role which was bringing her added laurels, who was sitting in one of the chairs in the background, with her eyes intently fixed upon the central couple of the dancers.

My eyes followed hers, and I stiffened into a matching attention. For the girl she was watching was Mary, dancing as Mary alone can dance, every fibre of her body alive and vibrating with the high thrill which is always hers when she is dancing, either solo or with a partner worthy of her skill. She is always lost to everything else when she is on the dance floor, and I was not surprised that she had not seen my entrance with Noel.

But when my eyes went from her to her partner, whose skill, nearly matching hers, was so absorbing her attention, I knew that I had the key to Noel's unhappiness.

"Steve Redfield!" I whispered to myself, not knowing that I had spoken.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

GOOD RUBBER BRIDGE

Making your contract and forgetting about extra tricks is supposed by most players to constitute good rubber bridge. That is good enough if there would be any risk entailed in going after the extras which could be avoided by being more conservative. But if the extra tricks are right there, to be made without any risk to the contract, the fine player wil strive for them. In the long run, those extra points can mean the difference between being ahead or behind if you are competing generally with players who otherwise are fairly evenly matched.

Here West led the heart Q. After a brief glance at the situation, South saw he stood to lose nothing but two tricks in clubs, giving him an extra trick. So he won the opener in the dummy, led a club to the A and East returned his spade 3 to the A. Another club was led, West winning and returning his heart 10 to the A. The club 5 was then ruffed in dummy, and the declarer took the rest of the tricks.

South could just as well have had two extra tricks, by setting up diamonds through ruffing. He could have won the opener with the heart K, laid down the diamond A and ruffed a diamond with the spade 5. The spade 2 to the J could be followed by a second diamond ruff. The spade 6 to the 10 could have brought a third ruff. The last trump could have been dropped then and the heart 9 led to the K. Two set-up diamonds then would have furnished two club discards, limiting the total loss to one trick instead of two.

Tyger Gridders Defeat Alumni 19 to 0 Under Lights

Sport Podge by REX HESS

With the A. B. C. coming to Columbus next winter, Mansfield keglers expect to send at least ten teams to the alley classic. And the better Mansfield teams are already worrying about how they are to reach peak form in time for the big meet.

"We can't be splitting up our teams, and we can't expect to show much improvement against handicap competition," they maintain.

Which leaves them, only Sunday special matches for the kind of bowling they want. And that isn't enough.

Now I don't know much about bowling, but I can have an idea now and again, and here is one the boys can kick around for what it's worth.

Form a tournament league, an all-star aggregation with no handicap. Make the collection of pins the main object. Roll on either match or game basis, and have championship standings too if that's desired, but—:

In the prize list make the important item the improvement shown by teams and bowlers during the season.

Bissman's, Orange St. Cafe, Liederkranz and Eagles should be interested in such a league, and there may be one or two others. Bowling in the leagues in which they now roll, and in this league, and in special Sunday matches should give them all the kegling they'd want.

The football season closes Saturday with that big game down at Ohio State's horseshoe, and Mansfield high closed its grid season last night, and what am I talking about? Is this spring or not?

They tell me it's true that you can't get real Bock in the springtime any more, and that Brown October Ale is just a song that has nothing to do with October, and the seasons are getting all mixed up, and the grass is getting brown this spring before it gets green.

And the queen of the May, no doubt, will be a nice old guy in longies. Sometimes I longy for the good old daysies, when things were right and proper and as they should be.

This thing is getting me all unbalanced on an even keel. Let's call it a day.

Madame Springtime takes a slap.
She can't wipe football from her map.

745 SCORE WINS ABC SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP

ST. PAUL, Minn. — (AP) — This town will go back to normalcy today, after a hectic 55-day program of the American Bowling Congress.

None of the high ten minor event leaders was threatened on the final day, after the Vogels Brothers team of Forest Park, Ill., had clinched the team event Monday with a 3065 total. Bill Lee and Ray Farness of Madison, Wis., won the doubles with 1346; Fred Ruff, jr., of Belleville, Ill., the singles via a 745 total while Harold Kelly gave South Bend, Ind., its first tenpin title in winning the all-events with 2013.

Leaders Reach Tests

Tribe and Cardinals Face Chief Rivals.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(AP Sports Writer)

THE St. Louis Cardinals and Cleveland Indians are at the cross roads today, their winning streaks shattered and their pursuers confronting them face to face.

After winning 11 games in a row the Indians tripped over the Washington Senators yesterday 5-3 and the Cardinals' ten-game string was snapped at Boston by the Braves, 5-4. In each case errors were responsible for the defeat.

It was inevitable that their streaks would be interrupted. The question is whether they can keep up a consistent clip now that their stride has been broken.

Today and tomorrow the Indians will be up against the challenge of the New York Yankees and the Cardinals will collide with the Brooklyn Dodgers, who themselves had a nine-game streak up till a week ago.

In the only other American League game yesterday the Detroit Tigers nursed their incipient winning streak to five games and moved into second place with a 7-4 conquest of the Yankees as a farewell gesture to Hank Greenberg.

The higest-salaried, most valuable player in the American League was to be inducted into the army today and he paid his last respects to the 1941 baseball season by belting two home runs, the first he had hit in 15 games. Bruce Campbell also punched out a pair of round-trippers and young Johnny Gorsica pitched five hit ball.

The Cardinals outhit the Braves 11 to 6 and had a two-run lead until the bottom fell out in a five-run fifth inning. John Grodzicki, fastball rookie, walked two men at the start of this frame, but made the next two fly out. Then Jim Brown muffed a grounder to fill the bases and the youngster was rattled to the extent of forcing in a run with another walk. Sam Nahem relieved him and was touched for four runs on singles by Maxie West and Eddie Miller and an error by Terry Moore.

The Dodgers celebrated their acquisition of Billy Herman by pummeling the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-3. Dixie Walker got two home runs, including one with the bases loaded to break a tie in the seventh, Joe Medwick hit a circuit drive with one on, and Herman, who had been batting .194 for the Chicago Cubs, treated himself to a perfect day at bat with a double and three singles.

The Phillies pasted the Cincinnati Reds with their sixth setback in seven games 4-2 as the veteran Cy Blanton bested Johnny Vander Meer in a pitching duel.

The Cubs were crushed for the tenth time in 12 games as the New York Giants triumphed 5-3 on the four-hit hurling of old Carl Hubbell.

Hub fed a three-run homer to Hank Leiber in the first inning, then settled down to a masterpiece of pitching.

Keystone Combination of Braves Sparkles In Drills

A double-play combination that threatens to develop into a Boudreau-to-Mack duo is working out at the Fairground under the watchful eye of the Braves' pilot, Alex Clowson.

It consists of Shortstop Bob Ankrum, a Zanesville boy, and Bob TeStruth, who hails from the Cleveland sandlots.

Clowson has been more than pleased by the performances of these two infielders, and right now it looks like they will hold down those all-important positions on the night of Wednesday, May 14, when the Mansfield Ohio State league representatives pry off the lid in a tussle with the defending champion Lima Pandas.

Ankrum, assigned to the Mansfield club by Flint of the Michigan State league, is a rangy athlete who can go to either his left or right for ground balls, and has indicated that he knows what to do with the pellet when he gets it.

Although he reported with a lame wing, Ankrum said today that the soreness has disappeared. To prove this statement, he handled every chance that came his way in yesterday's practice session faultlessly, and also engineered a twin-killing.

Ankrum's hitting also has brought smiles to Clowson's face. He cracked a double to left yesterday and followed with a clean single to right on his next trip to the plate.

"If Ankrum continues to show as he has to date, Mansfield fans are sure to forget Howard Beals," Clowson said. Beals, a regular in the Mansfield infield for two years, is in the army.

TeStruth, on the other side of the sack, has drawn nothing but praise from Clowson. He is a flashy fielder, handles balls well on both sides and so far has shown no decided weakness at the platter.

According to present indications, Ankrum and TeStruth will hold down these vital positions when the 1941 season is launched, with the veterans, Dick Morse and Harry Siegbert, at their respective positions, third and first.

Incidentally, Braves' officials received a wire from the absent Siegbert yesterday, asking for transportation money. They immediately notified the husky first sacker that this would be refunded on his arrival.

"A trivial matter," the Braves' president, George Satterlee, said. "He was informed that this would be done after he signed his contract."

When and if Siegbert reports, Clowson believes his infield worries are eliminated, for the present, at least. The pitching and catching staffs, not to mention the outfield, present a different story, though.

Among the outfielders still very much in the fight for regular spots are Bill Salem, Bill McGrath, Elmer Sielski and Joe Bolash. At least one of the quartet will be released.

If Siegbert, TeStruth, Ankrum and Morse can do a job of playing an infield to Clowson's satisfaction, the Braves' manager will move to the outer garden.

This eventuality will mean the release of two outfielders as the player limit will not permit carrying of more than three gardeners.

The catching staff now consists of three, Tim Mangan, a hold-over from last season, Ed Mutryn and Steve Bielek.

Don Wentz, one of the catchers on the Braves' staff last season, drew his release yesterday, as did pitching candidates Connie Domanke, Emil Freitag, Rex Benton, Ashland boy, and Bill Walker of Pittsburgh, whose father held down first base for the St. Louis Cardinals B. B. (before Bottomley).

In addition to the above mentioned candidates, Norman Weaver, of Richmond, Ind., an infielder, was handed the "pink slip."

Leading pitching candidates now are Chuck Byers, "Sky" Patterson, Tony Drewek of last year's team, and Zig Siat (editor's note—Siatczynski), Rudy Okleson, Jimmy Coleman, Hal Robison and Fred Wollpert.

As Clowson plans to carry six pitchers, two catchers, four infielders and three outfielders during the season, the number to be released before game-time a week from today is not large.

Big Hank Dons Army Uniform

Turns Down Deferment of 24 Hours For Game.

DETROIT — (INS) — Big Hank Greenberg went into the army today. And while the pennant will be raised at Briggs stadium signifying the 1940 American league championship, the league's most valuable player and the man who helped get that pennant will be going through the customary routine of being drafted into Uncle Sam's "team" for a year.

Surrounded by photographers and newsreel cameramen, the Detroit Tiger outfielder appeared with a score of other draftees five minutes before his scheduled 6:30 a. m. appearance. He refused to accept a 24-hour deferment granted him by his board so that he might participate in the flag raising ceremonies.

"I was told to report at 6:30 a. m. May 7," said Henk. "I'm glad the strain is over."

HEDGES AND NEWMAN WIN LEAGUE OPENERS

A seven-run rally in the last inning gave Hedges a 14-8 victory over Woodland in the opening game of the grade school softball league last night at Woodland.

Woodland sent three runs across the platter in the first inning, but Hedges came back with five in the same frame. Woodland took the lead again with two markers in the second, but once more Hedges bounced back with two. Then Woodland tied it up at 6-6 with a run in the third.

Newman defeated Carpenter in the other tilt on the league's opening day program 9 to 3.

Indians Face Yank Sluggers

Believe Pennant Chances Depend on Showing.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—There are 154 games in an American league season, but a good many citizens of Ohio believe the Indians' battles with the New York Yankees today and tomorrow will decide a lot of things about the pennant race.

The word persists that if the Redskins can defeat the Manhattan outfit consistently this year, they are "in" despite Joe McCarthy's assertion of a few hours ago that "the Tigers are the team to beat."

The New York manager may have been unduly influenced by three straight drubbings Detroit gave his club, but regardless the Indians are out to make him eat the words.

Manager Roger Peckinpaugh beckoned Al Milnar, lantern-jawed southpaw, to the hill for the opener. Al Smith, whose tantalizing portside slants have brought him three victories, will pitch tomorrow if trainers can work a cold out of his shoulders muscles. Otherwise it will be Mel Harder, curve-ball veteran.

McCarthy named Marius Russo for the first clash and said his choice for the finale would be Red Ruffing or Lefty Gomez.

The Indians went into the short series with all the pressure lifted, Washington having snapped the Tribe's 11-game winning streak yesterday with a 5 to 3 victory.

Things failed to break for Cleveland and this coupled with Ken Keltner's two-run error and some faulty base-running forced Jim Bagby to accept his second defeat. Bagby gave up six hits before retiring in the middle of the eighth, with Joe Heving finishing.

Dutch Leonard's knuckle ball stopped the Indians with 10 hits, including a double and two singles by Roy Weatherly. The little center fielder thus hit safely in his ninth consecutive game.

The Indians picked up two runs in the sixth on Bagby's double. Singles by Weatherly and Lou Boudreau and a long fly. They added the other marker in the eighth on Weatherly's two-base blow, a walk and Hal Trosky's line single into right field.

Washington won the game in the eighth when Keltner bobbled Ben Chaiman's easy grounder with the bases filled and two out.

TEAM PRACTICES

The N. & W. Coal Service softball team will hold a practice game tonight and Friday at 6 p. m. at Liberty park. All players are asked to report for practice.

Sixty Attend Mayor's Dinner

Enthusiastic Session Held By Sportsmen.

Sixty of the 200 members of the newly organized Charles Mill Lake Sportsman's club held an enthusiastic meeting last night as Mayor William Locke entertained them with a wiener roast at his Charles Mill Lake cottage.

Carl Breyman, temporary chairman, outlined the purposes of the organization, and declared its chief object was to cooperate with the state conservation council and the Muskingum Conservancy board in the improvement of the Charles Mill and Pleasant Hill lakes for boating, fishing, hunting, and beautification.

Talks were also given by Judge Kalbfleisch, Wayne Stutz, vice commodore of the Pleasant Hill Boat club, Paul Cropper, chairman of the committee on duck hunting, and by Robert Derror and A. J. Burkhart on boating.

A committee from the club will meet this evening with Bryce Browning of the Muskingum Conservancy to discuss plans for development of the Charles Mill and Pleasant Hill areas. Browning later is to speak at the Fish and Game association dinner at North Lake park.

Membership cards are being distributed to all hardware and sporting goods stores in the city today and may be obtained there by prospective new members of the Sportsman's club.

LIBERTIES CALLED

Manager Dewey Durant today called first practice of the Liberty park baseball club for Saturday at 2 p. m. at the park diamond. The following players are asked to report: Petie Beer, Pete Campbell, John Linta, Joe and Chuck Atton, Bob Boyd, Heinie Convas and any others wishing a tryout.

Nameth Sparks High School Eleven to 3-Touchdown Win

Former High School Stars Forced To Stage Iron Man Stunt

By REX HESS, News-Journal Sports Editor.

MANSFIELD HIGH'S TYGERS closed their spring football practice drills with a not too impressive 19-0 victory over a battling senior-alumni aggregation last night under the lights at Stadium field before a crowd of about 300 fans.

The alumni, well acquainted with the Tyger offensive plays, stopped the high school gridders cold on thrusts at the middle of the line, and forced Coach Paul Snyder's warriors to depend almost entirely on end sweeps for their yardage.

Louie Nameth, hard-driving halfback, sparked the Tyger attack, reeling off several 20-yard runs during the evening, and at least twice he was away for certain touchdown jaunts only to stumble with not an alumni tackler near him.

Throughout the first quarter the alumni gave the Tygers all the battle they wanted, but lack of substitutes (they had only two) broke down the Iron Men and they wilted in the second period as the Tygers pushed over two touchdowns.

The first high school touchdown came within 30 seconds after the second period opened when Adam Brandt fumbled Hershey's punt on the alumni 40-yard line, then picked up the oval and dashed for the goal line behind perfect interference.

On the try for point Doolittle passed to Winbigler in the corner of the end zone for the extra marker.

Shortly afterward Nameth intercepted Hershey's pass on the alumni 35, and then picked up 15 yards on an end run. A pass from Doolittle to Krupp put the ball on the one-yard line, and Nameth went around end for a touchdown.

A break gave the Tygers their third and last touchdown early in the third quarter. Winbigler recovered an alumni fumble and immediately afterward a 15-yard penalty for holding put the oval on the one-yard mark again. Doolittle scored on a quarterback sneak.

For the rest of the third quarter the alumni took charge of the ball game, piling up four first downs, but meeting a snag in midfield on incomplete passes and penalties.

Recovered fumbles put both the Tygers and alumni in scoring position in the last quarter, but neither team was able to cash in on its chances.

* * *

The center of the alumni line, Guegold, Sauder and Lantz, played stellar ball for the oldsters, while Romano and Nameth came nearest to reaching the starry heights for the Tygers.

Junior High Track Marks Threatened

Records for the Johnny Appleseed - John Simpson track meet are sure to be broken, according to Coaches Cameron and DeHaven, when the annual junior high meet is held tomorrow afternoon at Stadium field.

Appleseed has three outstanding performers in Jimmy Smith, half-miler, Frank Beckel, half-miler, and Bob Morehead, hurler of the discus and shot.

* * *

Simpson appears to have more strength in front line trackmen, and is counting on points from Jasper Browning, hurdler, Roland Schmidt in the 100 and 440 dashes, Lee Crownover, high jumper, Carl Schafer, quarter miler, Bob Bauer in the 100 and 220, Charley Hamman, in the hurdles and 220, and Tom Yountz, quarter miler.

The meet is scheduled for 4 p. m.

STEELS, RAILS TOP ISSUES IN TRADING TODAY

Wide Range of Stocks Given Play on Stock Market; Cotton Moves Higher.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Steels and rails topped other issues in irregular stock market dealings today.

A wide range of stocks received a play, and analysts suggested this fact indicated a growth of public interest in securities trading.

Among firmer shares were Bethlehem, New York Central, Dupont, Westinghouse, Kennecott, Anaconda, Woolworth ad United Aircraft.

Cotton moved higher for the seventh consecutive day, reaching new four-year peaks, with a jump of around $1 a bale. Other commodities tended higher. Bonds followed the pattern of stocks.

The selection of Emil Schram, chairman of the RFC, to head the stock exchange was viewed by many commentators as the most important effort yet made for a rapprochement between Washington and Wall Street.

Interest was added to retail store sales by a survey showing a 29 per cent gain in the sales of chain and mail order houses this season over last.

CHAPTER XII

Rex said unexpectedly, "I've wondered lately, Raye—just how serious you were over Hal. If he's the reason my excellent points don't register with you, it's a calamity. Ruthie's a regular clinging vine, you know. When a woman like that decides to cling, there's very little a man can do about it."

"Please don't worry about me, Rex," Raye began, then quickly paused.

Hal Bedford himself was standing beside her chair.

"Like to try this dance, Raye?" he asked, his dark eyes tempestuous as they held her startled gaze.

She rose immediately, the corners of her small mouth uptilted and her pulses racing.

"Lydia's over there—waiting to dance with you, Rex," Hal added now.

"Righto," said Rex, with the utmost indifference.

But out of the corner of her eye, Raye saw his heavy-set figure start swiftly across the room as she went on winged feet with Hal to the dance floor.

She thought, "What is it about Lydia that gets all the men?"

Hal held her closely—so closely that she could feel the rapid beat of his heart.

"Darling—you're beautiful tonight—I love you," he said, his magnetic voice filled with something that sailed through her like a heartbreaking melody.

He stumbled, would have completely lost his balance had she not steadied him.

She caught a whiff of his breath, heavy with liquor, and said, "I'd rather hear you say that—when you're strictly yourself, Hal. Besides—I don't understand about tonight. You love me so much—yet you prefer Lydia's company."

"Hang it, no! It was forced on me! But after tonight, darling, you and I will have a solid month to be happy in. I'm just a carefree bachelor now."

Somehow this glib statement greatly annoyed her.

She frowned up at him, asking bluntly, "You and Ruthie settled anything yet?"

"Pretty much. She's batty about what she calls my infatuation for you."

"I know. Ruthie came to see me this morning. I wanted to talk to you about it tonight—but it seems you weren't so inclined. Anyway, Hal—we'd better call everything off."

"Fiddlesticks! You're making the devil of an issue over our—our beautiful love, sweetheart. Don't tell me you're jealous, too! Ruthie's jealous — Lydia's all fussed up tonight over—over. . ."

"Yes?" encouraged Raye, her heart like ice.

"Tell you what . . ." Apparently he had caught himself in time. He went on, after the pause, with ". . . what we'll do! We'll week-end at the Trotter's house party at Lake Pleasant! It's made to order for us, darling!"

Raye was in no mood to consider house parties. Besides, his evasion concerning Lydia had made her cautious. Also, she was furious. If Hal hadn't brought Lydia here tonight, she might have entertained the house-party idea, she thought apprehensively. But now, perhaps fortunately, Hal himself, although brutally stabbing her heart, had opened her eyes enough so that she could see him in a new light.

"No, Hal. From now on, I'm a working girl with no high-flung week-ends and few dates. Besides—you may not be able to grasp it at the moment—but you and I, Hal—are through!"

It had taken every ounce of moral strength she had to utter those words. Oh, she loved him so! Oh, how could she keep finding the stamina to refuse him at every turn?

The music stopped and Hal linked an arm tightly through hers.

He bent over her as he walked unsteadily beside her. In a thick, rasping voice he said, "You and I will never be through—I swear it!" He paused, then: "I want you—I'm going to have you!"

It was like a period at the end of a sentence. Conclusive. Something like premonition raced through her, making her shudder.

She tried to draw away from him, but he clung to her with a grip of steel, his hot breath heavy on her cheek.

Upon reaching the table where Rex waited, Hal abruptly released Raye and started back across the room to Lydia.

Breathlessly, Raye dropped into the chair opposite Rex whose eyes betrayed his curiosity. She lifted a glass of water unsteadily to her lips and took a slow drink.

"Lydia's a queer one—seemed burned up over something," Rex said, trying to draw Raye out. "Have she and Hal been pretty friendly since I've been away?"

"I—I really don't know," replied Raye, dizzy and hardly conscious of what she said. She added apprehensively, "Does it matter—specially?"

"Yes—it matters to me. I hate to see you get hurt, Raye."

She dropped her eyes. With a nervous forefinger, she began tracing a haphazardous pattern on the red, white and blue tablecloth.

"That's exactly what I never intend to do—get hurt," she told him, then clutched her quivering lower lip in sharp little teeth.

Liltingly gay melody now filled the artistically lighted, long low room, and a mellow-voiced baritone began singing, "When I'm riding the airways with you, I never feel blue."

But Raye's brain was spinning mercilessly around a thousand questions. She was too discouraged to enjoy any more of this evening. Hal's date with Lydia—what did it mean? And had Hal forced Ruthie into any definite plan? If so, he hadn't mentioned it.

"Oh, she couldn't go on like this—she couldn't, she couldn't!"

"Well, darling," said Rex soberly, "if you don't intend to get hurt—could you take some brotherly advice?"

"Probably not," returned Raye glumly.

"Why be self-centered about this hurting business? Why hurt some one else? That's one for Ruthie and two for myself, you know." Rex laughed mirthlessly.

Raye attempted to feel incensed, found she couldn't and for a moment didn't even try to think of an immediate reply.

Something like shame assailed her now and she wished she were anywhere else.

She lifted tear-filled eyes to him and said, in a tight voice, "You've—you've hit the nail on the head. I confess—I am slightly bothered over Ruthie. How—how did you guess?"

"Because I know you, dear. Actually, you're not the capricious, light headed little glamour girl you pretend to be. You're far different. You're . . ."

"Good evening, Miss Stone," said a familiar voice at Raye's elbow.

She glanced up, startled, at tall Bill Anderson's serious hazel eyes.

"Will you dance?" he added eagerly.

She smiled wanly and stood up. "Anything to get away from Rex and his old moralizing," she thought rebelliously. Yet she realized that she'd have to fight to disregard his advice. This thing called conscience—conscience that so unwillingly let one snatch happiness!

Yet Rex was merely a man. What did he know of the emotion that could tear a woman's very soul? Besides, he thought himself in love with her, so of course he would try every possible way to get her away from Hal—or any other man.

Raye went into Bill Anderson's arms with easy nonchalance.

BUILDING STILL SWINGS UPWARD

50 Per Cent Increases In Number of Permits and Valuation Shown.

With more than a 50 per cent increase in the number of building permits issued and a similar increased estimated in the cost of new buildings, Mansfield's building boom progressed rapidly during April.

Permits were issued for the construction of 60 new buildings at a cost of $225,465 and 19 alterations for $13,790. Only 23 new building permits were issued in March for $87,550 and ten for alterations at $14,600. Approximately $74,000 worth of building has been started since the beginning of the year.

Application for the construction of 35 new homes valued at $168,000 was made. Other permits for new buildings included an apartment house, $15,000; three warehouses, $32,000 and several small buildings.

Largest of the 19 alterations is planned at the Sons of Herman home on Orange street where an $8,000 addition is to be built.

HEARING OFF

Case of Embezzlement Suspect to Be Heard Tuesday.

The case of George Hahn, 139 Rae avenue, charged with embezzlement of $2,960 from the Albert F. Remy company, wholesale grocers, was continued to next Tuesday by G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court yesterday.

Robert Remy, acting for the company, filed the complaint against Hahn, charging that he appropriated the money from company funds for his own use.

Lotteries are said to have originated in Florence about 1530.

PRESENT SERIES OF TALKS TO EXPLAIN PURPOSES OF CAMPS

Designed to acquaint Parent-Teacher associations and Mothers' clubs with the Y. W. C. A. summer day camp for girls 10 to 16 years old, a series of talks will be given by Miss Margaret West, executive secretary, and Miss Norma Sheer, member of the staff, starting today.

Miss Sheer is scheduled to speak to Bowman School Mothers' club this afternoon, and Miss West speaks in the evening to the Woman's auxiliary, Liberty Park association, at the park.

On Thursday, they will appear before the Prospect school Mothers' club and Brinkerhoff Parent-Teacher association; on May 13, Parent-Teacher associations at Woodland, West Fifth and Carpenter schools; and the Hedges Parent-Teacher association on May 14.

Both Miss Sheer and Miss West will stress the activities of the camp held five days a week for three consecutive weeks, June 9-27. The camp program will be divided among the various parks in the city, the high school and Y. W. C. A.

One or two activities will be held in each park, the high school pool will be used for swimming and the Y. W. C. A. will furnish a court for tennis and badminton.

Camp sessions will be held daily from 9 a. m. to 12 noon and each girl may enroll for as many activities as she is able to handle in that period of time.

First Aid instruction through the cooperation of the Red Cross, swimming, handicraft, archery, badminton, tennis and Bible story and drama are listed on the camp curriculum.

A physical examination is given to every girl desiring to participate in tennis and swimming.

Registration will be held Friday, June 6, at the Y. W. C. A. and a fee of 25 cents entitles each girl to the entire camp period.

WILL EXTEND INVITATION

BUCYRUS—An invitatoin will be extended to the Sandusky branch of the Women's Missionary association of the United Brethren church to hold next year's convention in Bucyrus, when the group convenes in Bowling Green this week.

Members of the local association voted to extend the invitation when they held their regular meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Jacob Stineman.

A couple of bad eggs...
but why blame the hen?

A bad egg does turn up once in a while ... but that's not a sensible reason for destroying all the good eggs ... or for taking it out on the hen.

Beer retailing in America is something like that. The vast majority of beer retail establishments are clean, law-abiding, wholesome places. And still there may be a few "bad egg" retailers who violate the law or permit anti-social conditions.

The brewing industry wants these undesirables eliminated entirely ... to protect your right to drink good beer ... and our right to make it.

And also to protect the many benefits brought by the beer industry to Ohio...such as the 50,196 jobs created ... and beer's $46,441,543 annual payroll. Beer contributed $10,717,714.00 last year in taxes to help pay the cost of government in this state.

You can help us in our program of law enforcement, if you will, by (1) patronizing only the legal and reputable places that sell beer and (2) by reporting any abuses to the proper law enforcement authorities.

arrival for United States war materials.

RAF night raiders attacked the north German port of Hamburg and the docks at Le Havre. Then, by daylight, bombers escorted by fighters roared across the Strait of Dover toward the French coast on a new mission.

In the channel fight, these claims were made:

London—Four German fighters shot down, one RAF plane fell into the sea.

Berlin—Six British planes destroyed; German losses, none.

Waves of Nazi bombers smashed overnight at the big Clydeside shipyards of Glasgow, Scotland; attacked Liverpool for the sixth straight night, and bombed northern Ireland for the third night in a row.

A British communique acknowledged that the raid on Glasgow was "on a fairly heavy scale," inflicting "considerable damage and a number of casualties."

The Germans said they also bombed Dumbarton and Newcastle harbors, Plymouth and Ipswich.

Nazi daylight raiders continued to stab at the Dover "invasion" corridor throughout the forenoon.

"Since dawn," a British statement said, "there has been continuous enemy activity by fighter aircraft near the southeast coast and the Thames estuary."

In the Near East, British general headquarters reported that British troops "ejected" Iraq soldiers from positions overlooking the British airdrome at Habbaniyah, 60 miles west of Baghdad, which has been under siege since last Friday.

Dispatches from Iraq said the fighting still had not taken on the character of a real war, and the Iraq radio was described as using a calmer tone in the past 24 hours.

The British command announced that imperial troops had regained control of the vital Mosul-Haifa oil pipeline, which flows from Iraq to supply Britain's Mediterranean fleet.

The announcement came as Prime Minister Winston Churchill prepared to give the house of commons the inside story on British reverses in the Balkans and North Africa and ask a vote of confidence in his war policies.

A Royal Air Force communique said that Iraqis who had captured a post along the Mosul oil line, cutting the flow of fuel to British-mandated Palestine soon after picketing started last Friday, had surrendered to British ground forces.

Though the communique did not identify the post by name, it apparently referred to Rutba, a wastelands station the British acknowledged Monday was in Iraq hands.

The situation at the big Habbaniyah airport, 60 miles west of Baghdad, was described officially as much easier following the withdrawal of part of the Iraqis from highland positions to the south.

Many of the guns with which the native troops had been pounding the base were reported silenced yesterday by repeated RAF bombardments.

SENIORS RULE

BUCYRUS — Bucyrus high school seniors today took over the operation of Bucyrus schools in observance of the annual "Senior day."

School board members, selected from senior boys, were elected by the class at a recent election. Members of the board then employed teachers, clerks and janitors to serve for the day. George A. Hickson, jr., will occupy the chair of superintendent, and James Milan will fill the office of high school principal.

COUNCIL PUTS CITY FIRE TAX BEFORE VOTERS

Levy To Replace Antiquated Equipment To Be Voted on at November Election.

would run, Miller today announced a tentative fire department modernization program.

Of the amount, he said, $60,000 would be used for new equipment, $25,000 improvement and extension of the city's fire signal system, $10,000 for the improvement of station No. 1, $4,000 for remodeling No. 4 station, and $25,00^ for the construction of a new fire station.

Miller said that the new station would be built in a location selected by the fire chief and the board of fire underwriters. He said they would probably select the best site to add to the city's fire protection system.

Miller also announced that the committee had planned the appointment of additional firemen for maintenance of the new equipment but that Ward had stated that the levy funds could not be used for maintenance purposes.

Councilman C. N. Shultz, in answer to Kyle pointed out that except for the one piece of equipment bought three years ago that the rest of the appartaus was "falling apart."

Miller said that City Electrician Ernest Adams had estimated that at least $25.000 would be needed to give the city an efficient alarm system. The chairman said that the new equipment would be useless without an improved signal system.

Council also transferred $7.000 from the general fund for the construction of underground cable for the fire and police signal system on West First street. Shultz said that signals have been crossed frequently in the past two weeks and that the new cable was needed immediately.

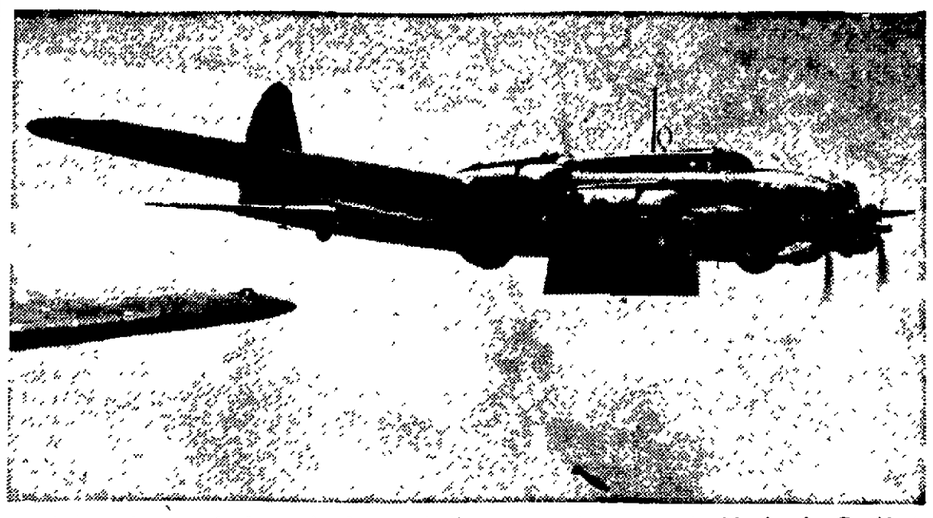

Letters from the Retail Merchants' association praising the levy and another from the Real Estate board criticizing it, were read to council by Clerk William J. Beer.

SENATE PASSES 'SOURCE' BILL

COLUMBUS — (NS) — Newspapermen in Ohio would be exempted from disclosing the source of information used in news stories under provisions of a bill passed by the senate today by a vote of 33 to 0.

Already passed by the house, the bill provides that newspapermen cannot be compelled to reveal their news sources in any legal procedure on trial before any court, grand or petit jury, or before any commission, department, division or bureau of the state, or before any county or municipal body.

More of These, In a Hurry, Roosevelt Asks

A large increase in heavy bomber production was made an urgent objective by President Roosevelt as he instructed Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson to get the job done quickly. Roosevelt gave Stimson a secret production figure to be attained. It is believed he asked for 500 new bombers a month. Pictured above is a heavy bomber of American manufacture.

day. Telephone linemen were busy pumping water out of the sewer today so repairs can be made.

Farmers said the showers which were general over the state benefitted pasture lands and crops. In most sections corn planting has been delayed because of the condition of the soil, but preparations were under way today to start planting.

More showers were forecast for today and again at the end of the week. It will be cooler tonight, the weatherman said. The mercury yesterday touched a high of 80 degrees.

Rainfall deficiency since the first of the year was estimated at more than six inches in the Mansfield area. There is a seven-inch deficiency in Columbus and most of southern Ohio. Reserve moisture in the soil has become dangerously low and a number of wells and cisterns in rural areas are dry as a result of the spring drought, Ohio State university soil experts said.

CRILES RETURN TO CLEVELAND

Famed Physician Fully Recovered From Plane Crash Injuries.

CLEVELAND—(NS)—Fully recovered from injuries suffered when an Eastern Air liner made a forced landing in a swamp near Vero Beach, Fla., April 3, Dr. and Mrs. George W. Crile were back at Cleveland clinic today for physical check-ups and x-ray examinations.

Dr. Crile walked from a plane at Cleveland airport to his car unaided. Mrs. Crile said he had been swimming regularly last week at Vero Beach. She said her husband expected to return to work at the clinic of which he is head, in a short time.

New York Newspaper Says Ship Was British Nerissa.

NEW YORK — (AP) — The New York Sun says the transport which was lost at sea with 122 persons, including 12 Americans, was the British passenger liner Nerissa.

Ottawa advices yesterday reported that the ship presumably was torpedoed. Unofficial and incomplete lists showed 35 persons accounted for, with 22 of them injured as a result of "enemy action."

The Sun says it has learned that the victims of the disaster included 34 passengers and 88 crew members.

of the premiership at his own request, declared a communique circulated today by Tass, official news agency. It explained he had said repeatedly that "it is difficult for him to fulfill the duties of chairman of the council of people's commissars of the U. S. S. R. simultaneously with the duties of the people's commissar of foreign affairs."

Stalin, secretary-general of the Communist party since 1922, has moved increasingly in the fore in recent months. Twice during Yosuke Matsuoka's visit here last month Stalin received the Japanese foreign minister, who signed for Japan a neutrality pact with Russia.

Twice, too, within the past month, Stalin has made speeches—after more than two years in which he made no published address.

In his last speech, Monday night, he said the Red army had been organized and re-equipped in line with modern military experience.

A decree by the presidium of the supreme Soviet appointed Stalin to the premiership.

other repairs have been held up because of the repeated delay in the arrival of asphalt.

City officials said yesterday that the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company had been unable to make delivery for the viaduct and other street prospects.

Company officials contended that they had not been contacted since the asphalt arrived late last week and that delivery could have been made yesterday if requested. Carl H. Stander, president of the company, said that he had received no orders except for WPA patches.

Stander said that because the city had no roller the company would loan it one for use on the viaduct. Company trucks and workers will also aid the city workers in laying the new surface.

C. H. Heble, street superintendent, said that a layer of waterproofing material had already been spread over the new viaduct planking and that hot mix asphalt will be laid tomorrow morning.

As an experiment only one-third of the viaduct is being improved, Heble said. Although it was planned to resurface the entire bridge, city officials decided to surface only one-third to discover if the new work would remedy the trouble.

Call For Immediate Action By U. S. Navy Has O. K. From Roosevelt.

they "caused the president and congress to take up arms in defense of the freedom of the seas."

In this connection, it was said, the war secretary's emphasis on freedom of the seas might presage a formal administration reassertion of the historic American policy on that point—a move that would necessitate repeal of the neutrality act—and then insistence, as in 1917, that Germany respect this country's right to such freedom of the high seas.

Stimson said:

"The Axis has been steadily encircling our western world — its advance agents are already busy among the republics to the south of us, building strategic airlines through vital portions of that continent and creeping up towards our Panama Canal.

"It's armed forces are threatening West Africa, looking towards a jumping off place within easy reach of the Brazilian Coast. Its propagandists are already vigorously active in our own population.

"What are we going to do about it?"

"The life-line of Great Britain is threatened The high water mark of the Nazi effort is at hand in the shape of an attack on the shipping which furnishes Britain with the means and nourishment to maintain her battle.

"Right now at this crossroads of history it is within our power if we choose to use that instrument (the navy) to turn the tide of darkness back from the Atlantic world, and, while it is thus held in check to gain the means which will preclude it forever from attaining its fell purpose.

"If today the navy should make secure the seas for delivery of our munitions to Great Britain, it will render as great a service to our own country and to the preservation of American freedom as it has ever rendered in all its glorious history."

Senate opponents of administration foreign policy said they regarded Stimson's address and Senator Pepper's speech in the senate yesterday as trial balloons to ascertain the country's sentiment toward active involvement in the war. Pepper urged joint action by the U. S. and British fleets.

"After speeches by the president and Willkie," Senator Nye (R., N.D.) told reporters, "now come Pepper and Stimson. Today the organized interventionists will flood Washington with messages supporting them."

Stimson, it was noted, made no specific suggestions as to how the navy should be used. Some informed sources considered this significant, for they believe that convoys may not be the best system under present war conditions, and that more effective tactics could be worked out if the U. S. fleet and the royal navy were operating jointly.

The proposal for naval assistance, however, was interpreted in some quarters as an indication that the recent far-flung extension of U. S. navy patrols in the Atlantic had failed thus far to help Britain cope with the assaults on her shipping lanes. Might mean major developments have occurred in the past ten days, it was said, for previously London officials had hailed the patrol extension as a decision of "tremendous" importance.

There has been no intimation from official sources as to how much, if any, lease-lend material has been lost at sea. The Red Cross announced yesterday, however, that out of the $14,000,000 in supplies the organization has started for Britain, $1,056,000 worth has gone to the bottom.

ILLNESS FATAL

Mrs. Bessie Maul Dies Week After Husband's Demise.

One week after the death of her husband, Mrs. Bessie Maul, 56, of Washington township, died this morning at Mansfield General hospital following a short illness. Her husband, late William Maul, died at Mansfield General hospital a week ago this morning.

Mrs. Maul, who was born in Ashland July 11, 1884, had spent the greater part of her life in Mansfield. She was a member of the First Lutheran church.

Survivors are four brothers, Carl Willis of Mansfield, Clarence, of Columbus, Vern, of Toledo, and William Willis, of Akron. Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Charles H. Massa, of Mansfield, and Mrs. R. O. Davies, of Bellville.

The body was taken to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held Friday at 1:30 p. m. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer will officiate. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

on which American citizens were legally traveling.

Germany at first respected that position, refrained from sinking American ships. Later she revised her position, flatly announced she'd carry on unrestricted submarine warfare against ships she thought were carrying aid to Britain. The United States went to war.

Before the present European war broke out, our neutrality law was passed, designed to keep American vessels out of combat zones, it was reasoned we would have no excuse for war if our ships were not sunk, if American lives were not lost.

More recently, the congress and the president amended that law to provide all aid to Britain short of war. The bill is known as the lend-lease bill. But so far, all aid has gone to Britain in other than American ships.

Knox of the navy says we cannot allow our goods to be sunk in the Atlantic, after specifically making them for Britain. Hull of the state department says the safety of the hemisphere requires resistance to the Axis wherever resistance can be effective. The president puts teeth into what his cabinet officers say by declaring to the world that American naval vessels would patrol as far into the seven seas as may be necessary for the defense of the hemisphere.

Finally Winston Churchill says United States naval patrols have been ordered to warn the peaceful shipping of all nations outside the combat zone of the presence of lurking U-Boats or raiding cruisers.

Washington observers add all these statements together, conclude that the American patrol puts a mighty ticklish point up to Hitler.

If he ordered his raiders to fire on patrol vessels, what risk would he run? Would America decide to fight?

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, MAY 7, 1941.

Civilization may not be all that could be desired, but it's better than suggested substitutes.

The Hitler influence seems to have extended to the Carolinas, where a cat has just adopted three mice.

You'll have to admit that the idea of a $90,000,000,000 national debt was approached so gradually that you scarcely notice the last three ciphers.

Superior Force Must Be Attained

SO FAR in the present European war the Germans have been immensely superior in numbers and equipment. Their victories have been achieved by superior force of men and metal. Their most decisive superiority has been in their powerful and plentiful mechanical equipment, especially the big tanks mounting cannon along with machine guns.

The Italians have merely gone along with the Germans, being rescued at the last moment by Hitler's legions from complete demoralization and surrender to Britain. They are now merely a subordinate branch of the German army, armed and provisioned by Hitler and given a modest share in his conquests.

The British, according to the information attainable, seem to have outfought the Nazis man for man on every front where they have met, losing ground only in fights where they were overwhelmed by German numbers and equipment and winning battles when conditions were anywhere near equal. From all parts of the empire they have proved themselves courageous and resourceful fighting men, more adaptable to new conditions and situations than their opponents.

It is evident that the British may be expected to wage war with steadily growing effectiveness as they marshal stronger forces and obtain better fighting equipment. The great potential productive capacity of the United States is now dedicated to the task of supplementing Britain's military equipment to any extent necessary to insure eventual victory over the Axis powers. There can be no withdrawal from that determination.

An Imaginary Hundred Millions

THE NEWSPAPER profession, in the normal course of its work, naturally learns certain simple facts about human nature and the art of publicity.

One of these basic facts is the ease with which an audience, or a following, can be found for almost any cause under the sun, noble or ignoble. Granted the publicity, and a leader whom the public has heard about and many people are curious about, it is easy to start and sustain a controversy in the eyes and ears of the nation, almost regardless of its merits.

This comment is made with special reference to the uproar raised by Colonel Lindbergh on the platform and in the press. The colonel is so impressed by the applause of like-minded or "suggestible" people that he actually says that 100,000,000 Americans who presumably agree with him, are helpless and voiceless, without access to the radio and press.

It is certainly a very large assumption. The colonel might have his eyes opened by a conference with Dr. Gallup, the public poll man. But almost anyone really in touch with public opinion in this country today, honestly seeking the truth and fearlessly stating what he finds, could set the young man straight. That is, if his mind were open to facts or if he had any talent for gauging public issues and opinions.

To Stimulate Cotton Sales

BETWEEN May 16 and 25, the merchandisers of this country are to undertake one of the biggest and most effective promotional campaigns in American retail history on behalf of a basic crop—cotton.

National Cotton week isn't an ordinary occasion. Cotton is the underlying factor in the economies of many states. Upon cotton, millions of American families are dependent for their livelihood. Conditions in the cotton market mean good times or bad for armies of workers employed in picking, handling, processing and otherwise dealing with cotton.

Today cotton is a distressed crop. The great foreign markets are gone, swept away by war. The crop this year will be large, and ordinary domestic demands will be unable to absorb it. What this all adds up to is plain: More cotton and cotton products must be used by American consumers if the great cotton belt is to be saved from disaster.

Civil War Nickname Revived

AMERICANS might as well brush up on their history and improve their accuracy in the midst of the vast amount of language whirling about them today. Take that word "copperhead." The dictionary defines it as a nickname given by their political opponents to northerners who believed that the Union forces could not win the Civil war. They say also that the copperhead, while he thought conquest of the South impossible and opposed continued prosecution of the war, yet was not necessarily sympathetic toward the South.

The copperheads were, in other words, simply the group that favored immediate peace, even if it meant dividing the nation, because they believed the outcome of the war would leave the nation divided anyhow.

Some Americans would apply the word today to persons favoring peace with Germany now, because they believe Germany will be the victor in the present war. But that is probably unwise. It is better to let new times produce new terms. The emotional reaction may be about the same, but the confusion will be less.

Alaska Making Progress

PUBLIC interest in Alaska is centered in defense activities. Uncle Sam is spending $90,000,000 to build army and navy bases at Sitka, Kodiak, Anchorage, Fairbanks, and Dutch Harbor, supplementary establishments near Ketchikan, Yukutat, and Nome, and landing fields between. The population, long around 60,000, has jumped to 75,000 as it has been augmented by troops, construction workers and technicians.

Alaskans have wanted statehood for some time. Perhaps they will get it sooner as a result of this new importance and swift development.

Passing out at the age of 111 years, the Boston Transcript dispels the old idea that "the first hundred years are the hardest."

Proposal Revives Union-Now Talk

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

AT THEIR national convention in Washington recently, the Daughters of the American Revolution adopted a resolution emphatically in opposition to the Union-Now movement.

The Union-Now folk favor a merger of all English-speaking countries into some sort of a confederation with a joint chief executive and a combination legislative body, chosen by the whole outfit collectively. The United States, England and the various British dominions, such as Canada, Australia, New Zealand, would be included. Each would have a considerable measure of home rule, but they'd be one family in their confederate attitude toward the rest of the world.

Presumably India, John Bull's smaller possessions generally and maybe the Philippines would be brought into the alignment. They are not all of them very distinctly English-speakers, but never mind that. It's suggested also that it might be desirable to admit the Spanish and Portuguese-speaking Latin-American republics, if they wish to join.

There'd be a certain loss of present national identities, at any rate—particularly of Yankee and British identities. Those two especially would be stirred together, and the Union-Now folk themselves don't pretend to say which ingredient would predominate.

The scheme was evolved out of current war conditions, but the Union-Now-ites don't propose it merely as a wartime association; they argue it as a permanency.

Capper Opposed, Too.

Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas puts it that it would mean "either the absorption of the British empire by the United States or absorption of the United States into the British empire." He doesn't think it would work, and he adds that he wouldn't like it even if it would; anyhow, he'd want to feel absolutely certain, in advance, that the United States would do the absorbing.

Well, the D. A. R. agrees with him.

Nevertheless, the Union-Now people are busy. And they're beginning to get hints of coming assistance from British sources. They're discerned in connection with steps the London government is taking in the direction of the formation of an imperial war council, to co-ordinate England's own and the dominions' efforts against the Axis powers.

All this is exclusively Britain's business. But now Lord Elibank, high in the ranks of Prime Minister Churchill's advisers, is arguing for a representative in the council from the United States.

Churchill's Position.

When the issue of absorption arises Prime Minister Churchill probably will be no more willing to have Britain absorbed by the United States than Senator Capper is willing to have the United States absorbed by Britain, but perhaps Winston figures that prospective absorbing can be so manipulated as to make it Britainward, which doubtless would please him very well, indeed.

The Anglo-American council is liable to tend that way. London will be its headquarters and the English, Canadian, Australian, New Zealand and South African members of it will be in a majority of five to one versus the lone Yankee.

Listen World!

Hi-Yo, Silver—Salute!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

A LITTLE MAN died the other night. In himself, he was not impressive—and had no wish to be. Yet his voice had rung out over America as few voices have ever rung. And he had left his indelible impression on millions of young hearts and many an old one. For—yes, you've guessed it—that little man was the glorious, campaigning voice behind "Hi-Yo, Silver!" . . . the cry of "The Lone Ranger."

How often you've grinned as the youngsters gathered round when his nightly broadcast came . . . and how often you've joined that gathering yourself. Perhaps you felt a bit sheepish as you did so; but you needn't feel that way now. Chances are there was nothing finer in all your life than that impulse to listen in while The Lone Ranger did his stuff. For that "stuff" carried on all that was best and bravest in yourself.

The nation mourned when The Lone Ranger went his way; but it didn't mourn for glamour or gaiety or even for adventure. It mourned for something that has become all too rare in these desolate days—for the symbol of gallantry. There went a voice that did not call to a silvery horse alone, but one that roused fighting fineness in each one that listened—child or woman or man.

We've forgotten the fineness in ourselves, we moderns. Our present social system has laid the emphasis on smartiness rather than sincerity, on glamour rather than grit. We're trained to show and expect a flash front rather than solid virtues.

Yet back of that shallow glamour and that false front, "The Lone Ranger" still rides: Still we long to leave our petty programs and hurl ourselves into the great and generous adventures. Still we long to sneer at risk and sacrifice, and hurl ourselves against injustice.

We have not greatly changed, we Americans, despite our amazing record. They were "Lone Rangers," once—all of those who gathered on that "rock-bound shore." They were in search of something more than pleasure and profit, for these they could have had for the asking in the lands they had left behind. But they were not enough to make life glorious. Deep in each heart there stirred a longing for wider living . . . deep in each spirit there ran the impulse of that call—"Hi-Yo, Silver!"

The world sees our complacent, conventional exteriors, our timid conformances and compromises. But, in our hearts, the great horse Silver rides and we feel the thunder of his hoofs . . . and the gallant urge that sends him on some mission of mercy.

So the voice of a little man most of us never saw carried that great cry on. And today every youngster in America is the better for hearing it.

There's a lesson in that; it's a pity someone can't pound it home. Youngsters are born idealists. There never was one who wouldn't respond to stories of gallant and generous courage, if told in time. But how much do we do in our schools to develop that idealism? We've lessons in charm and all the requisite smartness. But where have we lessons in character?

"OUR GREAT AMERICAN CRISIS IS CHARACTER," someone recently said. But who is going to mold young impulse into Lone Ranger character?

WHY ISN'T THERE A COMPULSORY COURSE IN EVERY SCHOOL IN THE SIMPLE ELEMENTS OF FINE HUMANITY. . . . A COURSE THAT WOULD SEND THE CRY OF "HI, YO, SILVER!" ECHOING DOWN THE AGES?

Congressmen Friendly To Labor Worried By Disturbing Element

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Leaders of organized labor have forcefully denounced the so-called "anti-strike" bill, due to be voted on by the house this week, as an attempt to deprive labor of the rights it has won in recent years.

Unquestionably the sponsors of the legislation are no partisans of labor, and would like to see it sharply curbed. But many members of congress whose votes made the labor gains possible, whose records as friends of labor are above challenge, are gravely concerned at the failure of responsible labor leaders to control elements who are bringing reproach to the great mass of patriotic and upright workers.

These congressmen were shocked by the scandalous "initiation fee" shakedowns on defense projects that poured millions of dollars into AFL building trades coffers. They are equally distressed by the apparent willingness of CIO officials to work hand-in-glove with Communists and fellow-travelers, who make no secret of their hostility to the defense program and the government's anti-Axis policies.

A confidential report of a glaring instance of this in a key aviation plant has just been placed before these congressmen. The plant is the Boeing Airplane company at Seattle, Wash., which is working day and night turning out "flying fortresses" for our army and besieged Britain.

Inter-Union Fight.

THE AFL machinists won bargaining rights at Boeing and the company entered into a contract with the union. Recently, the national headquarters of the union suspended some of the Boeing leaders on the ground that they were left-wingers. The company then dismissed them for the same reason. So they bolted to the rival CIO United Auto Workers, which is making a drive to capture all aviation plants.

Last week Wyndham Mortimer, UAW official, arrived in Seattle and held a secret meeting with these ousted leaders and a small group of their followers still employed in the plant. Two plans were agreed on:

One, to throw a picket line of women around the hotel occupied by Harvey Brown, machinists' president who was also in Seattle, denouncing him for the ouster of the left-wingers. Two, to start an uproar in the plant the next afternoon and stampede the men into a work stoppage.

Purpose of this proposed strike was to compel the company to reinstate the ousted left-wingers, to reopen the contract they had negotiated, and to recognize the UAW as a bargaining unit. No question of hours or wages was involved. It was purely a case of a group of leftists getting together with a high UAW official to disrupt production in a vital defense plant for their own ends.

The picket plan went through. But, apprised of what was coming, local authorities and AFL officials took prompt steps to block it, and there has been no walkout yet.

* * *

White House Robins.

MILLIONS of robins are building millions of nests this spring, but only one has learned the true meaning of "defense." He's the one who has built a nest in the safest spot in the U. S. A.

It is just outside the president's office, on the south side, atop a column of the White House portico. It is sheltered from the weather, and it's completely safe from bad boys looking for eggs.

The south grounds of the White House are protected day and night by special police, and except for Easter egg rolling and a few polite garden parties, no one is admitted. Even then, no one is allowed near the corner where the president's office is located. And this is the corner where Mr. and Mrs. Robin chose to build.

Perhaps there is a moral lessen in the difference between this nest and another on the White House grounds. It is in a swaying tree, far from the paternal protection of the president.

This robin, who cared more for beauty than security, built his nest by weaving together the bright colored strips of red and green paper from the children's baskets—leavings from the Easter Monday egg-rolling.

Gardener William Reeves says, "It's one of the prettiest nests I ever did see. But it's awfully exposed. The first high wind will blow it down."

Machine Tools.

CHIEF reason behind the big curtailment in auto production was the release of urgently needed machine tools for defense. The machine tool bottleneck could be broken overnight if all the machine tools owned by the motor industry were turned to the making of planes, tanks and other armament.

Defense experts estimate that there are around 1,500,000 machine tools in the U. S., of which more than half are in plants making motor vehicles or parts for them, and in the allied metal fabricating industry. The list includes grinders, milling machines, lathes, boring machines, presses, gear cutters, drillers, and shapers, all vital in the production of defense equipment.

New output of machine tools is now speeding at the rate of 14,000 a month. This is a spectacular achievement and a great tribute to the industry. But it is only a drop in the bucket compared to the 750,000 machine tools already possessed by the auto and metal fabricating industries, which army men say would increase defense production to full flow immediately if pooled and devoted entirely to this purpose.

Ferry School.

EVERYBODY is wondering how the swarms of fighting planes which U. S. factories will produce for the British in the next twelve months will be delivered overseas. The answer, for the big ships, is that they will be flown across—and in such great numbers that the British are setting up a special pilot training school for that purpose, in the United States.

The Army Air Corps is carrying out the plan. Though it will be a British enterprise, the Air Corps is guiding it because of better contacts with U. S. concerns. The corps is negotiating with private contractors who will build the school, with complete facilities, at a cost of $500,000.

The school will give an intensive refresher and training course to volunteer pilots to qualify them for "ferrying" the big bombers across the Atlantic.

The volunteers may be British, Canadian, or American. However, it is expected that the largest numbers will be American. The British can use 250 of them.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Beg pardon:

Some days ago this department commented on the Broadway "debut" of Philip Ober in "Mr. and Mrs. North." It seems that Mr. Ober has been playing on Broadway six or seven years, and his friends throughout the country have been wiring their congratulations on his "debut." A little note from him this morning was enclosed with a clipping from his daughter, Emily, who puts a mild blast on me for overlooking her father's past experiences. I don't blame her a bit, and if I see her I'll tell her so.

Beg pardon again: "In a recent column of yours," writes Phoebe C. Marks, World Wide Advertising corporation, "you said, 'New York has 23,628 taxicabs . . .' I hate to upset all your caiculations, but you will find that the actual number of taxicabs in New York City is 11,600. No doubt your source of information was the New York Times, which previously printed the misleading information and later corrected it when we called the matter to their attention."

No, the Times wasn't our source of information, but if the number we gave was wrong we certainly aren't going to let the Times show us up at doing the manly thing. We find the number of taxicabs in New York is 11,600.

BEG pardon a third time, with reservations. This has to do with the Fulton street fish markets. Some time ago we said the place smells. We have said the Fulton markets smell for years, and they have smelled—to high heaven—for years. They make strong men grow pale and women and children faint. The odors of the Fulton area are so terrific that you think about them for days. But now comes a nice, friendly note from the markets saying we are wrong. There are no longer any smells there, the note says. To prove it, come down and have lunch, they say. If this is on the level, a great miracle has been brought about. But until we see it, without being able to smell it, apologies are offered only with reservations.

William Wyler thinks the films would do themselves a service if they permitted rehearsals and then shot the scenes in actual sequence. Wyler is a short, dark Alsatian with wide eyes and a wide, indulgent grin. He is a director and his current assignment is the important one of directing Bette Davis in "The Little Foxes."

His idea is that shooting fragments of scenes that come in the middle of a story and following with the ending or a scene from the beginning of a film confuses the players too much and robs them of assurance. If you shot the story from beginning to end as it is written, the result would be a smoother, more finished job. Sounds logical.

Timely Editorial

More Deadly Than War.

Americans are shocked as they read that 20,000 persons have been killed and 40,000 injured since the bombing of Britain was launched.

And the pathetic thing about it is that bombs are no respecter of persons. They take old and young, men, women and children alike.

Indeed, Nazi bombs have come within 18,000 of being as destructive to human life in Britain as automobiles are to life in the United States in a year's time.

Autos are no respecter of persons either, they take old and young, men, women and children alike.

We need have no fear of Nazi bombs. They will have to become far more efficient than they are now before they can begin to compete with the menace to human life and limb that is already here. —Ohio State Journal.

A Farmer's Diary

Last Fruit Tree

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WE PLANTED the last fruit tree. It was the 559th, to be exact. All day the oldest boy dug holes—except the time he took to rest. I dug, took in the stony hilltop. We carried the pails of water up the slope to keep the roots wet while we planted the last bunches—already soaked for several hours in the pond. The moist fleshy roots dripped and the tops were thrifty. Many had small leaves emerging.

The hill was steep and we rested near the top—I with the pails of water, my wife with two bundles of trees. The afternoon was hot. We saw a manure grasshopper flit among the grass about our feet. A spider, gorged with eggs, hurred beneath a stone. A female bumble-bee tore boldly near our faces and lighted some distance off to investigate the possibility of a nest beneath a block of wood. Black ants were busy on a grassy mound. A june-bug droned along above our heads.

We rested our eyes upon the distant, many-colored fields of our Honey Creek valley, the silent flowing stream and the peaceful rural homes nestled each within a club of new-leafed shade trees. We saw our neighbors busy with teams and tractors—followed by little clouds of dust.

We went to work at our own task of planting. I set the pail of water near the center of the area and placed a clump of roots within each. We took out only three at a time, lest the wind should dry them. My wife held the tree upright, leaning slightly toward the prevailing winds, and I sifted the top soil in around the vital roots, tamped them firmly—then repeated the process until the tree was firmly set.

I wondered, after every tree was planted, if it did not somehow enjoy the care we gave it. I would like to think that every plant and tree enjoys the air it breathes—and that when new roots are formed within the lowly bed we made and pressed our feet upon, the growing organism may experience a delight we know not of.

'BLITZ' VICTIM SLEEPS WELL

Londoner Uses 400-Year-Old Stone Coffin For Air Raid Shelter.

LONDON—(U.P.)—A 400-year-old stone coffin is the latest thing in air raid shelters.

It rests in the crypt of Christ Church, Spitalfields, and is the home of Michael O'Connor, a London East End laborer.

Blasted from his home by a bomb three months ago, he has passed every night since, reading, eating and sleeping in the coffin.

"And very comfortable it is, too," he says.

Every morning, except Sunday, when he has a "lie-in," Michael is awakened by his wife with a cup of tea. Then he goes to work to face cracks from his mates, such as "Hullo, Mike, back from the dead."

The O'Connors, with their 15-year-old son, have made their corner of the crypt as comfortable as possible.

Mrs. O'Connor doesn't "fancy the coffin much," so she sleeps on the floor with her son, while Michael sleeps "like the dead" in his strange bed.

"I've slept in worse places," he says; "it's a bit drafty, but otherwise it's quite comfortable. There's plenty of room to move around.

"The first couple of nights I felt a bit strange and kept waking up, but I've got used to it now, and I sleep like a top."

GIVE PROGRAM

GALION — Galion high school musicians, directed by J. Wendell Byrnes, presented a program at the luncheon-meeting of the Galion Kiwanis club Tuesday at Carme"s. Those taking part in the orchestra which played several numbers, were Gene Cronenweit, Paul Schnegelsberger, James Angell, James Rensch, and Richard Durtschi. The program was presented in observance of National Music Week.

IF YOUR CHILD IS PALE and THIN

The reason may be WORMS!

Roundworms may be keeping your child underweight, pale, weak. And anybody, anywhere, can "catch" this dreadful ailment. Yes, the worms may be inside your child right now, stealing vital nourishment, and causing uneasy stomach, restless sleep, itchy nose and seat, and even worse trouble!

Don't let your child suffer! If you even suspect roundworms, get Jayne's Vermifuge today! It acts thoroughly, yet so very gently that if no worms are there, it works merely as a mild laxative. Jayne's is America's leading proprietary worm medicine; scientifically tested and used by millions for over a century. Insist on Jayne's Vermifuge.

Inter-Garden Club Fued Irks Natchez, Miss.

NATCHEZ, Miss. —(INS)— A polite inter-garden club feud—polite now since the mayor put a stop to the clamor—goes on behind the scenes while Natchez plays host to its annual Pilgrimage visitors.

The Pilgrimage Garden Club and the Natchez Garden Club, large rival organizations both sponsoring annual Pilgrimages through the flowers and homes of Natchez, are still at odds, however. Their squabble over the dates of each pilgrimage caused Mayor J. W. Bryne and the city aldermen to call a special meeting to settle the affair. The mayor issued an ultimatum, setting the dates for 1941 and 1942.

Enmity still exists, however, because the Pilgrimage Club's tour will be held first both years. The Pilgrimage Club was given the first three weeks in March, the Natchez Club the rest of the time before the floral beauty begins to fade.

PICNIC PLANNED AT SHELBY PARK

SHELBY—Arrangements were completed last night to hold the annual Methodist picnic at Seltzer park on June 12, during a meeting of the committee planning the affair at the church.

Rev. Arthur Staples, pastor of the church and superintendent of the Sunday school department, was elected general chairman of the affair.

Committees were chosen to arrange the outing which will include a basket dinner served family style.

INDIGESTION may affect the Heart

Gas trapped in the stomach or gullet may act like a hair-trigger on the heart. At the first sign of distress smart men and women depend on Bell-ans Tablets to set gas free. No laxative but made of the fastest-acting antacids known for acid indigestion. If the FIRST DOSE doesn't prove Bell-ans better, return bottle to us and receive DOUBLE Money Back. 25c.

NEW SWIM POOL FOR BUCYRUS STRIKES SNAG

Bids Opened But City Finds Rising Costs of Materials Will Change Plans.

BUCYRUS—Construction of Bucyrus' municipal swimming pool at Aumiller park, hit a snag Tuesday when bids for materials were opened revealing that the rise in cost of materials will necessitate changes in specifications to remain within the $25,000 bond issue. Announcement of awarding of contracts was made at city council meeting Tuesday night.

The plumbing contract, which was awarded to Dale Welling of Bucyrus on his bid of $9,561.39, showed the greatest upward surge in price, with the contract awarded at $2,000 more than the estimated price. One other bid, from the Williams Brothers of Lima, was for $10,200.

Other local concerns receiving contracts included the Ulmer Electric company for electrical work on its bid of $2,237 and Gledhill and Kime Lumber company for $1,297.55 for lumber.

Upon recommendation off Solicitor Harold Metcalf, a committee composed of the solicitor, Service Director Fred Judd and Councilman Bruce Sharrock, Carl Light, J. C. Hull and Ed Carter were appointed to meet with the architect, John Kile to work out the necessary changes.

Councilman Carl Light reported that county commissioners had agreed to assist financially in building a ford across Sandusky river for a west entrance to Aumiller park.

Reports of progress at the pool were given by Park Chairman Bruce Sharrock. Concrete will be poured the latter part of this week, he stated.

Lights to be donated by Bucyrus high school athletic association, will be used in lighting the ball field at the park during the summer and an agreement with the association for financial compensation will be presented for adoption by council at the next regular meeting.

With WPA work withdrawn, the question of building the street approaching the site of the proposed General Electric plant on South Walnut street was discussed by council but no plan of progress adopted. Solicitor Metcalf reported that he was conferring with company officials with a view of working out a plan of procedure.

STUDENTS WRITE VARIETY SHOW FOR PRESENTATION AT SHELBY

SHELBY—Written by a group of students, the variety program, "As You Like It" will be staged by high school students as a benefit for the speech and music groups at 8 p. m. Friday at the high school.

The script for the show was written by five students, Raymon Zeiters, Jeannette Freeman, Shirley Zeiters, Alice White and Bill Irwin.

Music students who will be featured in solo and group numbers are Nancy Nimmons, Edith Durst, Eloise Walker, Lois Walker, Paul Robinson, Charlotte Kime, Margie Stroup, Marilyn Moffatt and Doris Briner.

The "swing band" made up of high school students, will be featured in the show. Members of the band are "Bim" Hoffman, "Buffalo" Boellhiff, "Chunky" Pugh, "Birdie" Perman, John Smith, Harold Johnson, Paul Robinson, Kenny Hageman, and "Crud" Crawford. Featured vocalists will be Beatrice Bourgeois, Janis Fish, Jeannette Kempf and Lloyd Seitz.

The Eight Melody Maidens include Patricia Yetzer, Mildred Phillips, Carolyn Bond, Janice Garvin, Lillian Sherman, Beverly Sampsell, Patricia Shoup and Elinore Reynolds.

The black-face skit will be put on by Jack Randall and Bob Reed. Others taking part will be JoAnn Fish, Tom Sutter, Mary Lou Laursen, Joe Wagner, James Hohler, Harold Spangler, John Purdy and Sally Van Horn.

PRESENT PLAY

BUTLER—The senior class will present a play, "For Pete's Sake," on Wednesday, May 14, in the high school auditorium at 8 o'clock.

DEMAND FOR EFFICIENCY!

That's Why Heavy Power Installations and Chrysler Cars Have Fluid Drive

"Immediate adaptation to variable power load"... that's how science describes the function of Fluid Drive.

To give gasoline engines the fluid flexibility of steam was long the goal of research engineering.

Efficiency and economy were demanded . . . for industry must count the last penny of cost.

Flexibility to meet all load conditions . . . scientific control of power slippage in place of the hit and miss power loss of individual driving . . . ability to pick up great loads easily and with ever-mounting power . . . these were the economic requirements of industry.

Fluid Drive was the answer! Today the identical scientific principle that drives your Chrysler Car is efficiently serving in huge Diesel powered ships . . . great double-deck busses . . . the heaviest hauling tractor-trucks . . . giant industrial refrigeration plants.

Fluid Drive gives industry, as it gives the driver of a Chrysler Car, double economy . . . efficient application of power . . . plus longer life for the mechanism because of lessened wear and strain from jerks and jolts.

Now you can have this two-way efficiency in your own car—if it's a Chrysler—and in addition . . . ease, smoothness and silence possible only with genuine Fluid Drive.

New and old owners of Fluid Drive Chryslers now, for the third year, are reporting greater economy than from their former cars.

Why shift gears? Why stumble away when you can glide away? Chrysler Fluid Drive—jerk-free and jolt-free—is easier on both car and driver. The nearest Chrysler dealer cordially invites you to make a real test of Fluid Drive efficiency and ease.

BE MODERN WITH FLUID DRIVE AND VACAMATIC TRANSMISSION BUY CHRYSLER!

J. W. QUAY DIES

Galion Meat Dealer Succumbs While Walking In Yard.

GALION—J. Ward Quay, 50, meat market proprietor, died at his home, 226 North Columbus street, Tuesday evening. Although he had been in ill health for the past four years, he had shown improvement recently, and died shortly after a walk in the back yard of his residence. He suffered a heart attack.

Born in Morrow county, Oct. 12, 1890, he was a son of William L. and Cynthia (Hindman) Quay. His marriage on Nov. 30, 1916, was to Leona Dice, who survives.

Besides his widow, he leaves two brothers, Glenn Quay and Matthew Quay, both of Galion; and his step-mother, Mrs. William L. Quay of Galion. He had lived here for the past 36 years, coming here from Morrow county.

He was a member of Galion lodge No. 1191, B. P. O. Elks, and the Galion aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Friends may call at the Snyder funeral home. Funeral services have not been completed.

Stage Production.

Enlivening the Madison stage today and Thursday is "Red Hot and Lovely," headlined by the Ziegfeld Girls and a variety of acts featuring the Perry Twins, novelty dancers, the Three Roos Sisters, acrobats, Nixon and Sons, funmakers, and the radio team, Star and Lee. The show also carries Milt Henkin and his orchestra. Counted among the triumphs of the Perry Twins is the command performance before the Duke of Windsor in 1936 while he was King of England. "Flight From Destiny," the film attraction, has Geraldine Fritzgerald and Thomas Mitchell.

Early College Life.

Martha Scott and William Gargan play the stellar roles in "Cheers for Miss Bishop," film adaptation of Bess Streeter Aldrich novel, showing at the Ohio. Set in a mid-western university which opened its doors of learning before the turn of the century, the picture presents the lives and loves of three men and a girl. Martha Scott is the heroine and William Gargan, Sidney Blackmer and Donald Douglas the men who seek her favor. The story is a reflection of the fashions and manners of the times in the 60 years covered by the story.

Romantic Comedy.

Father and son set out to find rich wives in "Free and Easy," romantic comedy playing at the Ritz. Nigel Bruce, the father, discovers a wealthy dowager while Robert Cummins, the son, meets up with a wealthy spinster, played by Judith Anderson. Entrance of Ruth Hussey, poor but beautiful, turns the tide for the son. Based on the New York stage production the picture has C. Aubrey Smith, Reginald Owen and Tom Conway in the cast. "Murder Among Friends," has Marjorie Weaver and John Hubbard in a mystery that hinges around $200,000.

Marital Comedy.

"This Thing Called Love," the Rosalind Russell-Melvyn Douglas marital comedy showing at the Park, shows what a merry tangle can ensue when a well-meaning bride decides to put the honeymoon on a platonic basis so that her marriage will stand the test later on. Melvyn Douglas in the role of a young mining engineer attempts to arouse his bride's jealousy by pursuing a blond but only complicates matters all the more. Binnie Barnes, Allyn Joslyn and Gloria Dickson are in the cast. "The Devil Commands," Boris Karloff thriller, is the second attraction.

Farmers Warned To Keep Poultry Away From Pigs

WASHINGTON —(NS)— Keep all poultry away from swine advises the Department of Agriculture after finding that hogs were more susceptible to chicken tuberculosis than the chickens themselves.

The Bureau of Plant Industry placed 50 chickens and 31 hogs, all negative to the tuberculn test, in a pen with 50 tuberculous chickens. The pen was built with wire mesh for the top as well as the sides and equipped with elevated feed hoppers and roosts for the chickens.

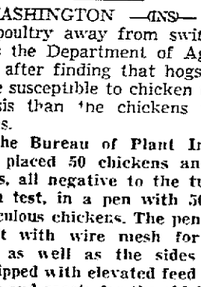

After the hogs and chickens had been exposed to the infection for a year they were tested with tuberculin and 93.5 per cent of the hogs and 54 per cent of the chickens reacted. When 28 of the hogs were slaughtered, 23 of the carcasses showed slight lesions of tuberculosis and chicken tubercular bacilli were recovered from most of them. The other five were classed as "no-visible-lesion reactors."

CAT BRINGS LUCK.

TRINIDAD, Colo. —(UP)— A Trinidad woman wondered if she would have bad luck after a black cat "adopted" her and persisted in living at her residence. Now, she says, the cat's assured of a home as long as it wants to stay, for she has won a contest prize.

CONFUSING MASCOT

CAMP EDWARDS, Mass.—(UP) —"Popeye," the mascot parrot of Battery E, 180th field artillery, has disconcerted the while battery. When the brief command "attention" is shouted Popeye promptly responds naval-like: "All hands on deck, the general is here."

They found 90 extra miles an hour in a drop of oil

Scientists at the "University of Petroleum" (Shell's $3,500,000 research laboratories) discovered how to produce Iso-octane, on a commercial scale, from a waste petroleum gas. This was the key to 100-octane fuel—which led to an increase in the speed of America's planes up to 30%! Now they've advanced the Road Performance Rating (RPR) of Shell Gasoline to an all-time high. Your Shell dealer has new Solutized Shell (at regular price) and Shell Premium.

Piqua Lady Felt So Miserable She Could Hardly Stay On Her Feet

Was In a Bad Condition Being Unable to Work, Sleep or Eat. Thanks to Rumasol For Making It Possible to Work, Eat and Sleep Again.

"I suffered untold agonizing miseries due to muscular Rheumatism," states Mrs. Walter Spillers, R. R. 3, Statler Pike, Piqua, Ohio.

"The calves of my legs and feet always ached. My joints and muscles were always stiff and sore. This condition made me nervous and bothered me mostly at night, and in the morning I was more tired than when I went to bed. The aching bothered my sleep and I was terribly restless at night. My ankles swelled so bad that it was hard for me to stand on my feet, and it hurt me to walk. I didn't have time to sit down to rest and I found it difficult to keep going. My hands were numb when I woke up in the morning. On account of my nervous condition I could not do any of my house work. Since I have taken Rumasol all my above troubles are relieved. I cheerfully recommend Rumasol.
